MISS, MRS. AMERICAS CROWNED—Being crowned Miss America of 1949 is Jacque Mercer, of Phoenix, Ariz., and the crown is being placed by BeBe Shopp, of Minneapolis, who won the title last year, also at Atlantic City, N. J. At right is blue-eyed, blonde Frances L. Cloyd, 23, of San Diego, Cal., mother of three, who won the title of "Mrs. America" yesterday at Asbury Park, N. J. Jacque's Miss America of 1949 loving cup yesterday was broken beyond repair when she arose from a chair to greet photographers and knocked the trophy to a tile walk. Donors said they would replace it.

READY FOR 'QUEEN OF ALL' CONTEST

California Mother of 3 Named 'Mrs. America'; Challenges 'Miss'

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—(UP)—Blue-eyed, blonde Frances L. Cloyd, 23, won the eleventh Mrs. America crown last night, and declared that she wouldn't go back home to San Diego, Cal., until she had defeated the new "Miss America" in a two-woman beauty contest.

Mrs. Cloyd, wife of garage mechanic Arthur T. Cloyd, Jr., and mother of three small children, one of them only seven weeks old, was named the most beautiful mother in the United States Saturday night. Last night she defeated a field of 30 beautiful queens of the kitchen for the title of Queen of Them All.

She came to the contest as "Mrs. California," and hopes to go home with a contract for a movie screen test, as well as the title of "Most Beautiful Beauty Queen" in the nation.

This was her second try for the title. She entered last year as "Mrse. Colorado," when she and her husband were living in Denver. She came in fourth.

Second place in the Mrs. America finals was won by "Mrs. Florida," Laura O'Banion, 31-year-old mother of a 12-year-old daughter with whom she used to pose for tooth paste advertisements.

"Mrs. Columbus," Mrs. Mary Rippel, 26, who won trophies for most beautiful figure and most beautiful hair-do, came in third.

"Mrs. America" said she would be glad to take up the challenge made by contest officials to pit their winner against the "Miss America" titlist with or without bathing suits, in the kitchen, on the dance floor, at the beach, or anywhere the Atlantic City winner chooses.

Mrs. Cloyd is five feet six inches tall, weighs 127 pounds and has a 36½-inch bust, 26-inch waist and 36-inch hips. "Miss America," Jacque Mercer, Litchfield, Ariz., is five feet four inches tall, brunette, weighs 106 pounds and has 34-inch hips and bust.

New Hospital Dedicated To Mitchell Health Plan

By CARL BROOME, JR.
Constitution Correspondent

CAMILLA—Mitchell Countians began today to reap a rich harvest in human lives and better health as the new 32-bed Mitchell County Hospital opened to receive patients.

The seeds for Georgia's second Hill-Burton hospital were sown in nickels and dimes when Mitchell citizens responded to a drive for $50,000 in 1947. Ground was broken in October, 1948, on a six-given the Mitchell County Hosacre site given the Mitchell County Hospital Authority by the City of Camilla.

The $268,168 structure, a milestone in Georgia's medical progress, was dedicated yesterday as 2,000 people heard Gov. Talmadge and other officials cite Georgia's Hill-Burton Hospital program as the backbone of the State's health progress.

No bands played and the brief one-hour ceremony was in sharp contrast to the 10-year fight by Mitchell citizens for their hospital, but there were tears of joy in some eyes as Rev. N. H. Williams gave the dedicatory prayer.

Gov. Talmadge congratulated Mitchell County's two representatives in the State assembly, Frank Twitty and Speaker Fred Hand, as co-authors of the measure that made Gorgia's participation in the Hill-Burton Hospital program possible. He predicted that more than $50,000,000 in hospitals would be built in Georgia under the present National program.

"I look upon our participation in this program as the greatest single achievement of my administration," the Governor said.

He continued:

". . . Let us preach the gospel of progress . . . build here that kind of State we want to hand down to our children . . . as a significant milestone in this noble purpose. Let us dedicate this magnificent hospital to the most sacred of all causes—the relief of suffering humanity."

During the ceremony the Governor presented Rep. Twitty the pen with which he signed Georgia's $3,000,000-a-year hospital bill.

"Of all projects in which the State has participated, it is getting more value received for its money invested in the Hill-Burton program," Rep. Twitty declared in introducing Talmadge.

Robert Culpepper, Jr., delivered the address of welcome to the throng and pointed out that Mitchell County started their hospital on their own, and "scraped the barrel" before Georgia entered the Hill-Burton program. "No line of color or class has been drawn in contribution or services," he said.

E. J. Vann, Jr., Chairman of the Mitchell County Hospital Authority, was Master of Ceremonies.

Others on the program were: Rep. Charles Duncan and Rev. Walter Blanks. Vann introduced members of the County Board of Commissioners, City Officials, the Tasteless Fluid Cuts Tot Tooth Decay 40 Pct.

By PAUL JONES

A new preparation which will cut down tooth decay among children by more than 40 percent was announced here yesterday by the President of the American Society of Dentistry for Children, Dr. Alfred E. Seyler, of Detroit.

The new preparation is a solution of sodium fluoride, which is tasteless, colorless and harmless, Dr. Seyler announced after he arrived to address the Northern District Dental Society in a meeting at 7 p. m. tonight at the Mayfair Club.

Dr. Seyler recommended that parents have their children's teeth treated with the solution at 3, 7, 10 and 12 years and at the same time maintain periodic check-ups to avoid other possible cavities.

The noted authority on child dentistry had another tip for parents. He advised parents who make a habit of coaxing their offspring to "open wide" while their dentist probes among the molars to retreat to the reception room and amuse themselves with a good magazine until the operation is completed.

"It would be easier on the child, the dentist and the parent, if mutual trust could be created between the child and the dentist," he said. "Children look to the parent for direction. But child dentistry should be treated just like an operation in a hospital." Parents do not go into the operating room, he pointed out.

Dr. Seyler said it should be the obligation of every dentist to care for children's teeth just as he would treat the adult's mouth. He should not say "they are just baby teeth", and, by the same token children should not be considered "half fare" patients, with a reduction in fees expected by parents.

Hapsburg Princess To Wed Prince Karl

VIENNA — (AP) — Princess Elizabeth Charlotte of Hapsburg, the youngest daughter of Austria's last Emperor Karl, will be married today to Prince Heinrich Karl of Liechtenstein at Castle Ligniere-scher, Liechtenstein.

Prince Heinrich Karl is a cousin of the present ruler of Liechtenstein.

Warm Sun To End Brisk Fall Snap

A warm sun will give Atlantans a pleasant day today, the weatherman says, but premature Fall weather is due to stay around at least a few more days.

WARMER

Fair and a little warmer is predicted for today with no rain in sight. Tomorrow will be partly cloudy, the forecaster says, but the thermometer will climb back into the 80s.

High temperature today is expected to be 78 after an early morning low of 57. Temperatures tomorrow are due to range between 60 and 81. The high reading yesterday was 75 after slipping to a chilly 55 during the morning.

Big Steel Okays Truman Bid For 10-Day Truce Extension

Union's Answer Expected Today

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The five major steel companies in the country will go along with President Truman on his request for a 10-day extension of the steel truce.

In rapid-fire order the "Big Five" wired their acceptance to the President. They agreed to continue operating at least until Sept. 25 in an effort to stave off a paralyzing strike.

The deadline is midnight tomorrow but Philip Murray, head of the CIO United Steelworkers, hasn't said whether he'll go along with the President. His reply is expected today.

Companies which have notified the President of their acceptance of a 10-day truce extension are: U. S. Steel Corporation; Bethlehem Steel Company; Republic Steel Corporation; Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, and Inland Steel Company.

However, Inland Steel late yesterday began preparations for shutting down its huge Indiana Harbor, Indiana, plant in anticipation of a strike. Clarence B. Randall, Inland President, said the company has no other choice but to begin a gradual shutdown—declaring it was necessary to protect workers and equipment at the plant.

In Pittsburgh, big U. S. Steel had plenty of worries beside the possibility of a strike by the CIO steelworkers. The Union Railroad an inter-plant line, is scheduled to go on strike at 6:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. The railroad strike would idle 30,000 U. S. Steel employees, along with about 20,000 employees in other steel plants served by Union Railroad.

The railroad is an inter-plant line. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen ordered the strike when unable to agree on working rules. No wage dispute is involved. The President appointed a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute and it reported last July 29, recommending arbitration. The railroad agreed to abide by the recommendation. But the BRT didn't and a spokesman told a mass rally yesterday a strike is "inevitable."

While the "Big Five" of the steel industry went along with the President, scores of little companies in the industry prepared their answers. Without exception they were expected to tell the President they would accept his 10-day truce.

In vew of the steel companies' acceptance of the truce extension, hopes rode high yesterday for averting the steel strike — and labor experts began to expect virtually nationwide labor peace based on withholding wage boosts while granting workers pensions.

Labor relations observers said that course, charted by President Truman's Steel Fact-Finding Board, is a compelling one for coal, auto

REDS READY

Russ Rely On Army Against Atom

MOSCOW — (UP) — Official newspapers accused the Western Powers yesterday of brandishing atomic weapons as they prepared for a new war and reassured the Russian people that "we have armed forces on which we can rely."

Marshal Semyon I. Bogdanov, chief of the Soviet armored forces, wrote in the Communist organ, Pravda, as Russia celebrated "Tank Day" that Russian people were immune to the threat of atomic weapons which "can frighten only those with weak nerves." He claimed the Russians invented the tank.

Moscow radio quoted Bogdanov as saying Russian military equipment "has always been superior to all types of our enemies' weapons."

"The Soviet people cannot forget that the imperialists are preparing a new war and brandish atomic weapons which incidentally can frighten only those with weak nerves," Bogdanov said. "The great patriotic war sufficiently, convincingly proved that our people never suffered from weak nerves. We have armed forces on which we can reply."

Pravda claimed the Russians invented the tank a year and a half before that fighting machine first appeared in Britain. Not only that, said Red Star, Soviet Army newspaper, Russian designers have now created tanks which have no equal in the world.

The article said:

"The facts show that the first tank designs appeared in Russia considerably earlier than people started to work on these questions abroad, and the first models of Russian-built tanks were constructed a year and a half earlier than similar machines appeared in Britain."

He said the date the first tank was made in Russia was May, 1915.

GRANDSON "BRINGS HOME" CHURCHILL HORSE—Winston Churchill claps his hands in glee as Colonist II, owned by his grandfather and namesake, leads the field across the finish line in the Lime Tree Stakes at Windsor, Eng. The wartime Prime Minister chews on his ever-present cigar while Mrs. Churchill leans over the rail.

Tito Rebellion Spreads; Czechs See Balkan Plot

BELGRADE—(AP)—Yugoslavia's rebellion against Soviet commands showed signs yesterday of spreading throughout the Cominform area.

Titoism has found important followers in other countries which have suffered from the Kremlin's effort to capitalize on their economic weaknesses.

A big-scale plot by Tito to form Eastern Europe into a combine against Soviet Russia was charged by Czechoslovak Communists in Prague.

The official Communist newspapre "Rude Pravo (Red Right)" said the alleged anti-government plot disclosed Saturday in Hungary was only part of the scheme.

It said assassination of various Hungarian government leaders and a military attack on Hungary were opening steps of Tito's campaign to organize anti-Soviet forces in the "people's democracies"—countries in the Soviet orbit—and to sow dissension in those countries "for the benefit of the Western powers in their cold war with the Soviet Union."

There were signs that Titoism was spurring Russian wrath and resentment. Under the ruthless Russian thumb, it was obvious that independence movements in Balkan countries have had rough birth pains. But it was equally obvious that where so many high ranking Communists have been denounced, there must be many rank and file plain folk who oppose Russian rule.

The latest clearcut example has come from Hungary where the government Saturday formally accused former Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk and seven others of plotting to overthrow the regime.

The Yugoslav press reported Rajk's arrest three months ago and predicted it would be impossible to halt Marshal Tito's movement for equal rights among socialist countries.

M'Grath Seen In Line for Rutledge Post

WASHINGTON— (UP) —Official Washington yesterday mourned the death of Wiley B. Rutledge, Associate Supreme Court Justice, and looked for President Truman to pick a liberal Catholic to replace him on the bench.

Among those considered as likely successors were Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming; Sen. Brien McMahon, Democrat, Connecticut, and Justice Harold M. Stephens, Chief Judge of the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Funeral services for Rutledge, who died in a York, Me., hospital Saturday night, will be held here Wednesday at the Unitarian Church.

The death left Mr. Truman with his second Court vacancy in less than two months—a situation almost unprecedented in U. S. history. It was expected that the President this time would bow to tradition and appoint a Catholic to the latest vacancy.

After Associate Justice Frank Murphy died on July 19, Mr. Truman chose Tom Clark, then Attorney General, to succeed him and the Court was left without a Catholic member for the first time in more than 50 years.

The President at the same time said that he did not consider religion a factor in the selection of Justices.

McGrath, O'Mahoney, McMahon and Stephens are all Catholics and all had been mentioned for the Murphy vacancy.

Speculation ran somewhat in McGrath's favor because it was widely believed that at the time he resigned as a Rhode Island Senator to enter the Cabinet last month Mr. Truman may have promised him the next vacancy.

British May Seek World Bank Loan To Bridge Limited U. S. Concessions

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Great Britain was reported ready yesterday to turn to the international monetary fund for direct loans to supplement the limited trade concessions she is expected to get from the United States.

There were signs, however, that the American Government representative on the 48-nation fund, and the fund's top directors, would oppose granting any loans to Britain until the British and other Western European governments devalue their currencies.

Britain was reported interested in getting the fund to repeal or modify a resolution passed in April of 1948 which now prevents it and other Marshall Plan countries from tapping the fund's $8,032,000,000 in resources.

If this were repealed, Britain would be eligible to draw $325,000,000 from the fund during the next 12 months.

This situation came to light yesterday as British, American and Canadian Government officials neared agreement on a six-point "stop-gap" program designed to start Britain on the road to solving its financial crisis.

Cabinet Ministers from the three governments are reported confident they can wind up their discussions late today This would permit Treasury Secretary Snyder and Sir Stafford Cripps, the British economic chief, and Canadian Finance Minister Abbot to attend the annual meeting of the World Bank and Monetary Fund which begins tomorrow

It was learned that the American attitude is that it would be a mis-use of fund resources under present conditions to make loans to Britain. Camille Gutt, the fund's managing director, is reported to feel the same way.

American Government officials believe that if Britain cut the value of the pound her sales of British products in the United States and Canada would pick up considerably, thus enabling her to earn more dollars.

The international fund was created in 1946 for the purpose of stabilizing world currencies and fostering world trade.

Diplomatic officials sitting in on the final negotiations reported the United States has about agreed to take these six steps to assist the British:

1. Liberalize Marshall Plan regulations to permit the British to use Marshall Plan dollars for part of the Canadian wheat and flour they have contracted to buy.

2. Partly relax Article Nine of the 1946 British loan agreement to permit Britain to discriminate temporarily against American goods. The United States would not waive the Article entirely, however, and would continue to maintain the principle of non-discrimination as something to be followed when economic conditions in Britain improve.

3. Increase purchases of British

German President Race Brews Bitter Politics

BONN, Germany — (AP) — A bitter political struggle seemed to be brewing last night over election of the first postwar German Federal President today.

Right Wing coalition leaders grew pessimistic at chances of getting an overwhelming vote for their candidate — Prof. Theodor Heuss, chairman of the Free Democratic Party (FDP).

They still expressed confidence they would win. But several said privately they expected the Leftist Social Democratic Party (SPD) to offer a rival candidate and make a determined fight of it on the parliament floor.

Right Wingers argue that the presidency is above politics and that all parties should join in a show of unanimity for a man from the coalition majority.

But the Socialists so far have turned a deaf ear to suggestions that the office should go without contest.

The SPD is not expected to disclose its exact strategy until a party caucus this morning.

That is only a few hours before 402 parliament deputies and an equal number of state delegates begin voting in the afternoon.

Most frequently mentioned as a Socialist presidential candidate is Wilhelm Kaisen, 62, lord mayor of Bremen.

Both Heuss and Kaisen are white-haired, scholarly figures, well-liked personally by almost all party factions. A Heuss-Kaisen contest would provide a clear-cut test of right and left strength.

This tactic, if used, could confuse the election considerably.

The CDU, strongest party in the Federal elections Aug. 14, is backing Heuss with the expectation that he will appoint Dr. Konrad Adenauer, CDU chairman, as chancellor.

SPD nomination of a CDU Left-Winger possibly would attract some CDU votes, some middle party votes that might abstain in a clear left and right contest, plus solid support of the strong SPD.

The SPD adopted a similar tactic only last Wednesday to upset the conservative leaders' applecart. It threw its support to Karl Arnold, a CDU Left-Winger, and helped elect him president of the Upper House when it saw it could not elect a member of its own party.

Political observers saw the possibility of the presidential election being a long-drawn-out process.

2 Italian Fliers Fail In Transatlantic Hop

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration said early today that the two Italian fliers headed for New York in their single-engine plane were forced back to the Azores Islands because of insufficient fuel. No other details were available immediately.

LISBON, Portugal—(AP)—Two Italian pilots headed for New York yesterday at 6:20 p. m. (1:20 p. m., EST) in a little single-engined plane loaded to the limit with ice-cold gasoline.

The fliers, Capt. John Brondello, of Turin, and Capt. Camillio Barioglio, of the Italian Air Force, carried only water, coffee, fruit, sandwiches — and toothpicks—for the 3,500-mile flight they hope to make in 32 hours.

If they do make it their flight will mark the first East-West nonstop crossing of the North Atlantic by a plane with a single power plant.

Brondello hopes to follow up with a barnstorming tour of the U. S. on behalf of a proposed Italian "Boys' Town" for war orphans, like the famous American Institution at Boys' Town, Nebraska.

"I hope we shall succeed," the 36-year-old veteran Italian flier said, grinning, after a last-minute delay for delivery of the toothpicks, which he insisted on carrying.

Their American-built Beechcraft Bonanza carried 262 gallons of gasoline, chilled in refrigerators until just before the take-off to reduce its volume and allow mechanics to pour in the last drop.

Brondello and Barioglio figured that was enough for 32 hours flying in case their 185-horsepower craft runs into bad weather.

(The Civil Aeronautics Administration in New York said the flight was likely to take nearly that long, and it did not expect the plane at La Guardia airfield until about 9.30 p. m., Monday, EST.)

The plane is named Santa Susanna, for Brondello's five-year-old daughter, who lives in Cuneo, Piedmont, Italy.

Monster Jet Bombers Visioned in 5 Years

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Air Force expects to have big jet bombers capable of striking targets thousands of miles from this continent flying in its strategic warplane fleet by about 1954.

Until then, experts said yesterday, the USAF's long-reaching, Sunday punch must be in the slower, conventional-engined B-36. For this much-discussed plane, the Air Force is spending about $1,000,000,000. Additional outlays probably will be made before engineers can complete and begin building a jet bomber to become the B-36's successor.

The air planners look upon the multi-million-dollar investment in the B-36 as interim insurance, to assure that the United States has in operation a long-range bomber during the possibly critical years until swifter but equally far-ranging jets can be produced. They quote Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, in this connection:

"One of the missions of the Air Force is to maintain forces ready to attack immediately and effectively the vital elements of an enemy's war-making capacity.

"We are convinced that for the next few years the B-36 provides the spearhead of the ready-for-combat force. Like any other aircraft, it will in due time be superseded by a better one. Its successor is now in the design stage."

The Air Force has assigned to the Boeing Airplane Company funds for preliminary study and development of the XB-52 jet.

Several changes from the original drawings already have been made in the XB-52 mock-up and further alteration of design is possible before the first experimental flying model appears.

Reports are that the exterior appearance of the proposed long-range heavy bomber resembles Boeing's B-47 medium. That plane, driven by six jet engines, has sharply swept-back wings like the newer jet fighters. Last winter it crossed the country over a 2,289-mile course at an average speed of 607 miles an hour.

The Air Force describes the XB-52 development effort as a "very active project," but declines to disclose how far along it is.

RATS ATE POISON, CLEANED UP SOAP

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The rats ate the poison Jimmy Hariott put out in his kitchen.

Hariott was happy about that until he looked all over and couldn't find the soap.

He finally did locate it—what was left of it—in a closet. The rats had eaten on it, too.

Now, Hariott is wondering if the rodents didn't take the soap as an atidote for the poison.

At any rate, he didn't find any dead rats.

6 In Tower Grilled on Bremen Case

Fulton County police yesterday continued to question six Georgians held in Fulton Tower for investigation in connection with a huge "crime syndicate."

Police said yesterday's questioning failed to produce any new developments in the extensive activities of the alleged ring referred to by police as "crime incorporated."

Chief G. Neal Ellis said no new arrests had been made but "this case is far from being complete." He indicated that several more arrests may be made.

The probe of the alleged ring's activities started Sept. 3 when Fulton police sprung a trap of John Valor, alias John Carrigan, at the Fifth Street apartment of Valor's wife. Valor was jailed in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Beatrice Samples Aug. 29.

The last two suspects arrested were brought to Fulton Tower Saturday by Capt. Delmar Jones, head of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

The two men, listed as Ralph Robertson and Darrell Rogers, both of Bremen, were arrested on charges that they "cased" the $24,000 Sewell Manufacturing plant payroll robbery Sept. 2.

Police estimated the entire activities of the ring would include "at least 200 stolen autos" and 10 to 15 robberies.

86,466 Labor Chiefs File Non-Red Oaths

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A total of 86,466 officials of national and local unions have filed affidavits saying they are not members of the Communist Party, the National Labor Relations Board reported yesterday.

The figure represents an increase of 5,110 between Aug. 1 and Sept. 1, the date of the compilation, the Board said.

Filing of the affidavits brought 184 national unions and 9,246 locals into full compliance with the Taft-Hartley Act provisions requiring the filing of such pledges before a union may utilize the services of the Board, the NLRB said in a statement.

Of the total number of affidavits filed by national unions by Sept. 1, 99 were filed by AFL unions, 34 by CIO affiliates and 51 by independent unions.

Foot-Deep Snow Falls In Montana

HELENA, Mont.—(AP)—The first snowstorm of the season dumped more than one foot of snow on parts of Montana Saturday night and yesterday.

The storm was fading out to a light rain in the extreme eastern part of the State last night. Virtually every section of the State reported some snow.

A total of 12.4 inches of wet, heavy snow fell here. It melted rapidly, but still measured up to six inches on the ground last night.

A Pioneer League baseball doubleheader at Great Falls had to be canceled because of the snow. An afternoon game at Billings was postponed due to wet grounds and the cold.

The heavy snow did considerable damage to trees in Helena.

GOP Says It Has the Ball as Truman Defends Record

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman's decision to defend the record of the Eighty-first Congress was welcomed by Republicans yesterday as a sign they have claimed the offensive in the 1950 battle for control of the law-making body.

Mr. Truman laid out in speeches and news conference statements last week campaign strategy calling for a switch in the role he played last year when he went up and down the country flailing the Republican Eightieth Congress.

The President made it clear that he intends to praise the eighty-first gathering of lawmakers as a forward looking group who reversed the "backward trentd" of the eightieth.

Sen. Taft, of Ohio, Chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee told a reporter it will be all right with him if Mr. Truman chooses to carry his fight to the country personally.

"He's welcome to come into Ohio and try to explain away the failures of the Democrats," Taft said. The Ohio Republican, seeking re-election next year, indicated he would like to have a chance for the kind of a short-range debate over the issues that any Presidential appearance in that State would provide.

Mr. Truman has indicated he may go into New York to help former Gov. Herbert Lehman, a Democrat, in his expected battle with Sen. Dulles, Republican, New York, over Dulles' Senate seat but the President hasn't said anything about Ohio plans.

Most politicians here think that next Summer will find Mr. Truman stumping the critical States with an appeal to increase the Democratic strength in Congress. If that happens, Sen. Wherry, of Nebraska, the GOP Floor Leader, said it will be "good news for the Republicans."

"The President has a lot of explaining to do," Wherry said.

"His inconsistency in proclaiming support of individual freedoms while presenting bills to Congress that would fasten statism upon the people requires explanation." (Wherry says statism is government control of affairs and activities of the people.)

"His inconsistency in saying he is for economy in government expenditures while spending more than any other peacetime President in the biggest give-away show on earth requires explanation."

Mr. Truman's defensive strategy will find him in an untried role. He took the initiative away from the Republicans in the 1948 campaign and shoved his own Presidential victory down their throats.

He called the Republican 80th, the "worst" Congress. In contrast, he has listed several accomplishments of the present session.

In general these included so far passage of a long range housing bill, extension of rent control, appropriations for rural electrification, "strengthened" soil conservation and reclamation programs, additional grain storage, and tightening of defense unification.

Republicans are likely to dwell during the campaign on the debit side of the Presidential ledger on Congress.

Despite nominal Democratic control, the 81st refused to kill the Taft-Hartley law he attacked vigorously. It ignored his finally-abandoned demand for $4,000,000,000 in new taxes as well as his program for inflation control.

It doesn't seem likely to act in the present session on his appeals for the Brannan farm production payments plan, for expanded social security coverage, for compulsory health insurance, for civil rights legislation, for his program of encouraging investments abroad or for government authority to build industrial plants.

ROBBERS FOILED BY TRUNK TRICK

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—(AP)—Using his own version of the magician's old trunk trick, Cab Driver Roscoe O. Spooner, 26, delivered two alleged holdup men into the hands of the law yesterday.

He told police the two fares he picked up in the Charlestown district robbed him of $8 and were about to leave him in a lonely section with no other cabs in sight.

Spooner climbed into the trunk as they were starting the motor.

Ten minutes later, when they abandoned the cab, he clambered out, summoned a policeman and pointed out the pair.

Francis J. Tagen, 24, and John Fitzpatrick, 23, were hooked on suspicion of armed robbery.

How Smiley Bowled 'Em Over

Dropped into the bowling alleys the other night and there was little Smiley Roberts, who's built like a bird, showing the big fellows how to do it. He rolled an average of 194 for 5 games. That's bowling!

Later on, over a friendly glass of beer at Andy's Garden Tavern, I asked Smiley how he did it. "Practice, practice, and then some more practice," he said, "and I follow a regular set of training rules so I'll keep in good shape."

Then Andy chimes in. "To be really good at anything you've got to follow the rules. Take running this tavern. We tavern owners and the Brewing industry have a Self-Regulation program we follow to see that places getting beer and ale are run right. When you follow the rules—you'll stay out ahead of the other fellow."

From where I sit, in sports or business it's important to "keep in shape." There are training rules and tavern rules—and they both pay off!

DROVE TRACTOR TO BUY SHOW TICKET

To Be 'Real Actress' Miss America's Goal

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(UP)—Miss America of 1949 said yesterday she is so stage-struck she once ran her father's tractor for 75 cents an hour to earn enough money to see a play.

Jacque Mercer, 18, a pert little brunette from Arizona's desert country, said her ambition was to be a "real dramatic actress."

Last year, she said, she asked her father for money to go to California to see a play. Her father, who grows cotton experimentally for the University of Arizona, replied that he would pay her 75 cents an hour if she'd run the tractor and harrow in the cotton fields.

"I ran the tractor until I had saved up enough money to see the play," she said.

The pint-sized beauty from Phoenix, Ariz., said she already had been offered a movie contract but hadn't yet decided whether she would accept it.

With her crown she won a $5,000 scholarship, which she'll use to study dramatics, a new car and bids from commercial concerns which pay her cash to sponsor everything from breakfast food and lipstick to undergarments, mink coats and swimming suits.

Miss Mercer, who is five feet four, weighs 106 pounds and measures 34 inches around the bust and hips, revealed that her real name is "Jacqueline Joy". She said she was named for her mother's favorite doll.

"But people had better call me Jacque," she warned. She pronounces it "Jack."

She is a student at Phoenix Junior College, she said. She said she had telephoned the college and been given permission to take a limited course during the coming school year because of her obligations as Miss America.

Runner-up for the Miss America crown was Miss Mississippi, Katherine Wright. Next came Trudy Germi, Miss Illinois; Sylvia Canady, Miss Colorado and Jone Anne Pedersen, Miss California.

10 COMMANDMENTS 10 TIMES A DAY IS GERMAN BISHOP'S PEACE RECIPE

BERLIN—(AP)—Bishop Otto Dibelius, head of the Lutheran Church in Berlin and Eastern Germany, gave this formula yesterday for lasting peace in Germany:

"Every boy should repeat the Ten Commandments once a day until he is 20, twice a day until he is 30, and three times a day the rest of his life. He should make it four times a day if he is a person of importance in the Government.

"The President of the nation should repeat them 10 times a day."

He was addressing the annual meeting of the church's "Inner Mission," a relief organization. He told his 30,000 listeners "the end of foreign occupation of Germany is in sight."

Church 'Forgives' Fraud Suspect

The congregation of the Friendship Baptist Church last night voted to "forgive" a man who allegedly fleeced the church out of $15 at the morning service.

Rev. C. E. Maddox, Pastor of the church, asked the congregation to determine the man's fate after he was brought to the evening worship service by detectives.

Dets. J. E. Sikes and R. A. Boone arrested the man yesterday afternoon after he was suspected of soliciting funds from the church under "false pretenses."

The man, identified as Homer Cantrell, 62, of 304½ Capitol Ave., S. E., asked the church to contribute to a fund to enable him to go to California to attend the funeral of his father, the officers related. Police learned, however, Cantrell's father had not died and a telegram notifying Cantrell of his "father's death" was sent by one of cantrell's friends to make the appeal "seem genuine."

After allegedly admitting his part in the fraud, Cantrell asked the officers to return him to the church last night so that he could "ask for forgiveness and return the money."

The Rev. Mr. Maddox and members of the church requested the officers to drop charges of flimflam which the officers were prepared to book against Cantrell. The money was returned to the church treasury.

and other industries now facing labor troubles.

The steel board came out flatly against any wage increases in steel or any other industry. It said the nation's economy is just settling down from its postwar convulsions and now is a bad time to upset that stability again. It also said the postwar wage-price spiral is over.

But the board called strongly for inauguration of employer-paid pension and insurance plans. It said workers want and need protection against their old age, death, sickness and disability. The Government, it said, has failed to provide adequately for this need and it's now industry's job.

The recommendations called for boosting steel industry payroll costs about 10 cents an hour a worker to finance a pension and insurance plan.

As part of its report the board indicated the steel union would be justified in asking a wage boost next Spring if the steel industry fails to reduce prices by then.

George Pushes $300,000,000 Aid Cut Plea

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Administration may have to take something less than $1,000,000,000 in aid for North Atlantic treaty signers to get its foreign arms bill through Congress.

Leaders who didn't want to be quoted by name said they feel confident they can get Senate approval of the full $1,000,000,000 Western European fund as the major share of the $1,314,010,000 authorization in the pending bill.

But once they have cleared that hurdle, leaders conceded they probably will have to give some ground to compromise with the House. The House voted only $580,495,000 for the Western European program.

Sen. George, Democrat, Georgia, pressing for a cut in the overall outlay, told reporters he thinks a proposal to slash the Westernn European fund to $300,000,000 will have even wider support in the Senate than it received from the combined Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees.

The Committees, meeting today to pass finally on the bill, have voted down George's proposal, 13 to 10. But the Georgia Senator said the decisive votes against his amendment were cast in proxy form. He added that if some of the Senators involved are present in person, they may back his proposal in the Senate.

Committee members continued efforts to compromise a battle over aid to China. The group voted last week to make $75,000,000 available to the President to give military aid to non-Communist elements in Asia.

Peeples Estate In Bartow Sells For High Sum

CARTERSVILLE—The estate of the late Mrs. Louis M. Peeples, sold at auction here in order to settle the estate, brought a total of $113,525, considered to be record-breaking prices for Bartow County property and reflecting the values of real estate in this area, according to court officials.

The largest block of property sold was a 1,000-acre farm in the Peeples Valley section of the County. It was awarded to Sam and Cliff Smith, of Cartersville, on a high bid of $60,300. Three store buildings in downtown Cartersville were purchased for $50,000 by the Fulton National Bank as trustees for Louis M. Peeples.

The heirs of the estate of the widow of Oscar T. Peeples, a son and daughter, Louis M. Peeples and Mrs. Mary Peeples Daves, are the beneficiaries of the estate.

JOHN BRADBERRY

Alabama Uses Split-T Three-Fourths of Time

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles by Sports Editor John Bradberry on Southeastern Conference football prospects this Fall. Others will follow.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — The gate to Denny Stadium was guarded by Bobby Hannah and an 11-year-old tow-headed kid who resolutely told one and all: "You can't get in."

But finally some fast talking by Rea Schuessler, the Alabama publicity man, convinced the determined keeper of the keys everything was legitimate and a privileged few watched Alabama sweat through a tough two-hour game scrimmage Saturday afternoon.

And the most impressive thing about the workout was the fact the former Red Elephants—now more closely resembling lithe panthers—used the split-T attack at least three-fourths of the time.

The boys looked like Alabama, all right, with their crimson shirts and contagious spirits, but only until the ball was snapped on T-formation plays did a big, rough quarterback named Butch Avinger take the ball from center, start wide around end and sometimes keep it, sometimes lateral in one of the split-T's favorite plays.

'T' Isn't New The T isn't new for 'Bama. Red Drew put some of it in last season and used it sparingly. But he has it further developed now and you can look for the Crimson to run it with increasing regularity.

"After all," Drew said, "Alabama has run T-formation plays for years. The first touchdown in the 1935 Rose Bowl game was scored on a T-play, only it was called "NL-shift" in those days, and Russ Craft ran 20 yards for a touchdown in the Cotton Bowl on a T-formation play.

"So actually we have been using it all along. However, we have developed it a bit more this year and probably will use it more often.

"We won't do away with the Notre Dame system, by any means," he continued. "You see, the split-T works hand in hand with our old stuff. We line up with our linemen split and if we are running a Notre Dame play, all they have to do is shift with the backs."

By mixing up the two, Red figures he'll prevent anybody using an eight- or nine-man line trying to stop his split-T, from which it is difficult to pass.

More Experienced Drew says he can't see how his team is going to be very much of an improvement over last season, but he can't find many folks around here to agree with him.

The Crimson was predominantly a sophomore club in 1948 and these fellows are back with a year's experience under their belts. Alabama has been out of championship contention for two years now and football people know such a situation isn't natural and won't exist for long.

Summing it up briefly, Alabama has fine ends in Rebel Steiner, Al Lary, Ed White and Howard Pierson; four superb centers in Capt. Doug Lockridge, Larry Lauer, Elliott Speed and Pat O'Sullivan; a pair of promising quarterbacks in Avinger and Jack Brown; one of the League's best runners in Bill Cadenhead, and an Ed Salem with a year's big league experience under his belt.

The club, like a lot of others, needs tackles and guards, especially the former, unless sophomores like Billy Shipp, Al Wilhite and Dave Mayfield come through to help Floyd Miller, Bill Teris and Herb Hannah. Jim Franko, Mike Mizerany, Ed Holdnak and Roy Smalley are the guards.

Salem Man of Hour There is a sophomore by the name of J. D. Roddam, from Pinson, Ala., who is making Salem step for his first-string job. The youngster weighs 203 and is regarded as a great prospect by all the coaches.

But there is little doubt Salem will have to handle most of the left halfback duties this season and much of Alabama's comeback chances will depend on him. The swarthy Birmingham lad had a lot on his shoulders as a sophomore, what with taking Harry Gilmer's place. He didn't do badly at all, but not what ardent Alabama fans were hoping.

However, he learned a lot, maybe enough to provide that comeback spark. At least, that's what folks around here are hoping.

This fellow Avinger is really an All-Something prospect. He weighs 210 and is rough and tough. Once during the scrimmage Saturday he was blocked by two of his own men who were looking for somebody to block. He solved this problem by butting both of them to the ground with his head.

Football is a rough game and that's the way he plays it.

Yankees Take 3-Game Lead Over Red Sox

A's Beat Boston Twice; Cards Gain Half Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's Yankees increased their lead to three games over the Boston Red Sox in the American League pennant race yesterday and the St. Louis Cardinals edged ahead by a half game to make their margin a game and a half over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League.

Philadelphia's Athletics jolted the Red Sox twice, 6-4 and 4-0, as the Yankees swept over the Washington Senators, 20-5 and 2-1.

The Cardinals took a double-header from Cincinnati, 7-5 and 7-4, while the Dodgers were winning a single game from the New York Giants, 10-5.

Other Sunday highlights:

1. The Yankees set a new major league record for walks in one inning as they received 11 in the third frame of yesterday's first game, beating the old mark of eight. They scored 12 runs, sending 18 men to the plate, one shy of the major league mark of 19.

2. Ralph Kiner blasted his forty-fifth and forty-sixth homers, each with a man aboard, to pull within five of his 1947 record of 51.

3. Detroit's Tigers captured their tenth straight game and eighteenth out of 20 as they beat the White Sox, 1-0

4. Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn's crack shortstop, suffered a severe bruise on his left elbow when hit by a pitched ball from the delivery of Giant Pitcher Larry Jansen in the seventh inning. X-rays at a hospital did not reveal any fracture. He will acompany the Dodgers to Cincinnati but it's uncertain if he'll play in the series there.

5. The Athletics tied the American League record for double plays in one season with 198, choking off the Red Sox in the ninth inning of yesterday's nightcap with their 198th.

6. "Fireman" Joe Page did another fine relief job to stop the Senators in the sixth and final inning of the nightcap.

7. Leftfielder Ed Stewart and Ssortstop Sam Dente, of Washington, collided in short leftfield during the big Yankee uprising in the sixth as they went after a pop fly by Allie Reynolds. Both were knocked unconscious. Dente left the field under his own power but Stewart was removed on a stretcher. At Lenox Hill Hospital X-rays showed Stewart received severe chest and neck bruises.

The second Yankee - Senator game was called after the Senator sixth because of darkness.

Washington almost tied the nightcap, belting out two straight doubles and a single with none out in the sixth but the trio of hits produced only one run. Phil Rizzuto started a game-ending double-play to snuff out the rally.

Reynolds won his 16th game in the opener.

Philadelphia's Carl Scheib pitched two-hit ball against the Red Sox in the second game to salt away a lead set up by Joost and Chapman homers. Joost clouted his round-tripper—his 22d—in the third while Chapman socked his 22d—and second of the day—in the fourth with one on. That's all Scheib needed to gain his ninth win. He's lost 11.

In the opener, successive homers by Chapman and Suder in the second inning sparked the A's to their triumph. Philadelphia piled up a five-run advantage in the first three frames to make the going comparatively easy for Joe Coleman who recorded his 13th triumph.

Jack Graham and Paul Lehner slammed out home runs in the sixth to help the St. Louis Browns upset the Cleveland Indians, 5-4, at St. Louis.

Cardinal Outfielder Stan Musial clouted his 30th homer in the opener with the Reds then came through with two more in the nightcap which was called at the end of eight innings because of darkness.

Howie Pollet, posting his 19th victory as against eight defeats, was touched for nine safeties in the nightcap.

Philadelphia's Phillies twice bopped the Braves, 3-1 and 6-3, pushing the 1948 National League pennant winners back into fifth place. Left-hander Ken Heintzelman gained his seventeenth decision in the opener, and Russ Meyer, who beat the Tribesmen only last Thursday night, was credited with his thirteenth of the campaign in the second contest. Curt Simmons was rushed in in the ninth to preserve the Phils' victory in the nightcap.

The double loss erased any mathematical chance of the Braves to retain their National League title. Their record now shows 11 losses in their last 12 games.

The Phils have won a dozen of their last 15 games.

Bartell Triumphs

Arthur Bartell won the Junior Progressive Club tennis championship yesterday afternoon with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Herb Axelrod.

West End Bogey

Frank Brown, Paul B. Ford and J. A. Womack, Sr., shared bogey honors at West End yesterday with 77s.

MIDGET DRIVER NOT SERIOUSLY HURT IN CRASH

Dick Croop, who cracked up in Saturday night's midget automobile races at the Peach Bowl Speedway, suffered neck and back injuries and lacerations of the face.

His attending physician said last night that Croop is not in a serious condition.

TD Club To Meet Today; Will Honor Prep Figures

The Atlanta Touchdown Club will hold its organizational meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Ansley Hotel.

Marion Talley, Vice President, will preside in the absence of President George (Pup) Phillips, whose mother died recently.

The Touchdowners announced yesterday that they would honor a high school player and a high school coach each Monday throughout the season.

The outstanding player in the State one week will be selected by members of The Atlanta Constitution prep staff, with members of the Journal prep staff selecting the State's top coach. The next week the procedure will be reversed.

No guests will be permitted at today's meeting. The first session open to visitors will be a week from today.

Borkowski Wins Southern Loop Batting Crown

In the final but unofficial averages released last night by the Howe News Bureau, Bob Borkowski, Nashville outfielder, won the Southern Association batting championship with a .376.

In second place was another Vol slugging Swish Sawatski, who turned in a lusty .360. Sawatski wasn't left out of top honors, however. He banged out 45 home runs for first place in the four-bagger parade, and knocked across 153 runs to head the RBI department.

Atlanta's Ralph Brown was the league's biggest thief during the year, stealing 32 bases.

Pete Mallory, Nashville ace, topped the pitchers with a 20-4 record, followed by teammate Frank Marino's 19-7 showing.

Tech-Georgia Frosh Game Plans Made

Coaches from Georgia and Georgia Tech, newspapermen and radio announcers gathered last night at Harry Carr's estate to make preliminary plans for the sixteenth annual game between freshman teams from the State's two leading institutions of higher learning, Thanksgiving Day at Grant Field.

It was a short, to the point, meeting, with Wallace Butts, of Georgia; Bobby Dodd, of Tech, and W. A. Alexander, Tech's Athletic Director, the only speakers.

Tom Law, one of the three members of the original threesome that handled the game, was master of ceremonies. He introduced the coaches, reporters and announcers, and also Frank Spratlin, who, along with the late Billy Wardlaw, composed the original team in charge of the game.

Joe Westbrook and Bob Wilby are cochairmen this year, Westbrook succeeding the late Bob Scott.

Coaches from Georgia present were Butts, Bill Hartman, Carroll Thomas and J. B. Whitworth. From Tech came Coach Alexander, Dodd, Ray Ellis, Ray Graves, Dwight Keith, Roy Mundorff, Dick Jones, Lewis Woodruff, "Mutt" Manning, Joe Pittard, Publicity Director "Chick" Hosch and George Griffin, Dean of Men.

Springfield Overpowers East Point Motors, 16-2

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

BORTS FIELLD, YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — Springfield, Mass., a professional-looking amateur nine, jolted three East Point Motors' hurlers for 17 hits to pound out a 16-2 victory here yesterday afternoon in the second day of the annual NABF tournament.

Ray Doyal and Ray Fitzgerald paced the thunderous volley, accounting for nine safeties and ten runs-batted-in between them as the little Devils led their two-game run total to 43. They mauled Hazard, Ky., 27-4, in Saturday's opening game, while East Point was edging Moraine, of Dayton, Ohio, 2-1.

Doyal climaxed a prodigious day at the plate by slamming a three-run homer in the ninth for his fifth hit. Fitzgerald drilled three straight singles and rammed a bases-loaded triple in his first four attempts to rush six runs plateward.

The Atlanta city champs spoiled Gene Lynch's shutout in the last of the seventh on a double by Marvin Gaines and Al Kendrich's single.

Jennings hit Turner and Tom Lynch lived on Melton's error at third to set the stage for Doyal's inside-the-park homer in the ninth.

Melton's triple and Gaines' fly to center gave East Point its second run in the final frame.

Lefty J. B. Williams or Bobby Smith will seek to keep East Point in the running today. A setback will drop them out of the double elimination battle royal.

Billy Talbert Shows Tennis Brilliance As He Beats Grant in Thriller, 7-5, 10-8

By GENE ASHER

Smooth-stroking Billy Talbert smashed a deep drive just inside the line to win the second set, 10-8, after 18 exciting games with Atlanta's Bitsy Grant. The brilliant New York performer had already won the first set, 7-5, and thus gained a victory over Georgia's State champion before an overflow crowd of 450 enthralled fans yesterday at the Northside courts.

After one hour and 27 minutes of play, Bitsy said, "Talbert is the greatest player in America. His service is tops and if he had the stamina, Billy could beat Ted Shroeder and National Champion Pancho Gonzalez."

"Bitsy is still tough and I am glad this game wasn't played ten years ago," Talbert stated after the match.

Russell Bobbitt and Grant upset Talbert and Frank Willett in the doubles match, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Bobbitt was never better. His volleying was flawless and his surprising service was unbroken.

Willett smashed several shots down the middle and Talbert scored with drives in the alley but their attack failed to stop the Bobbitt-Grant combination.

Talbert used a murderous service in the singles match. He aced Bitsy six times. The visitor scored with over-head slams, and after faking a deep drive, the nation's third ranked player would register with lobs just inside the line.

Grant played his best game of the season even though he wasn't successful with his usual drop shots just over the net. Bitsy played to Talbert's backhand and even though he was kept on the move throughout the game, the former national clay court champ made the two top shots of match twice falling to the ground after racing for two of Talbert's liners. He scored on both shots, with drives that split the line.

Bobbitt, one of the top players in the state for several years, agreed with Bitsy concerning Talbert's ability. "Billy has the greatest service I've ever seen and if he had the stamina he could beat them all." Russell also added, "Grant played his best game of the year."

Talbert hoped to end it in the second set's 14th game. He was at match point but the game Grant refused to yield. Bitsy carried the match four more games before bowing out.

Green Bay Conquers N. Y. Bulldogs, 7-4

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — (AP) — Ralph Earhart scampered 42 yards for a last-quarter touchdown yesterday to give the Green Bay Packers a 7-3 National Football League exhibition victory over the New York Bulldogs.

A crowd of 5,000 fans sat through a drizzle to watch the two clubs battle without a score through two quarters. Nick Scollard booted a 55-yard field goal for New York in the third period and it looked as if the kick would bring victory until Earhart was sprung loose.

New Force for Better Government

The average law-abiding, respectable citizen sometimes can be a grave threat to good government.

That is so because the average citizen doesn't want anything special in the way of favors from his Government. All he wants is normal services. He likes to get value received for taxes paid, but he seldom bestirs himself to make sure he does.

Because of this general apathy toward government, the way too often is left open to pressure groups which always are looking for opportunities to benefit at expense of the community at large. And Government officials, hearing only from pressure groups at meeting after meeting, occasionally become confused and mistake their voice for the voice of the people. There probably are Government officials who prefer to make that mistake, but, by and large, we believe most of them don't. Most of them want to serve their communities as best they can.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, together with the League of Women Voters, the Grand Jurors' Association, the Women's Chamber of Commerce and the Jaycees, wants to help bridge the gap between the average citizen and local government officials. Members of these organizations are attending meetings of County Commissioners and of City Council to observe proceedings. It is something that hasn't been done before. And it already is bringing results.

The County Manager Plan, inaugurated in Fulton about two years ago, has been the subject of undercover attacks for some time. Last week the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce unanimously approved a report of the Local Affairs Committee upholding the County Manager Plan and strongly recommending a long-range public works program to serve the entire county and which will still the voices of competing pressure groups.

The Committee noted that the County Manager has not received consistent support of the Commissioners, and declared "pressure brought on the Commissioners by dissident individuals and groups has tended to obstruct the efficient operation of the plan."

To stifle the claims of pressure groups, the Chamber urged preparation of a comprehensive public works program to be rigidly adhered to except for temporary departures in real emergencies.

"It is our conviction," said the report, "that the development of such a long-range plan . . . will do more to solve the problem of pressure groups and will produce more for the tax dollar, and will give more and better public service than under the old spoils system which has been in operation for years."

To that we agree. The Chamber of Commerce is doing a real service in focusing attention on local governmental problems. It is a project which merits universal support.

$52,000,000 Tobacco Crop

When the tobacco season closed last week, Georgia farmers found themselves about $52,000,000 richer. It was one of the biggest, if not the biggest, tobacco seasons the State has ever had.

Sales this year exceeded 1948 sales by about 20,000,000 pounds, but since prices were somewhat lower this season, the cash brought in was only about $500,000 greater.

Because there seems to be a difference in the methods of reporting by the State Department of Agriculture on the one hand and the Federal Department on the other, there likely will be confusion from time to time about the State's actual production. The State Department of Agriculture report covers first-hand sales; that is, sales from the farmer to the next buyer, that of this total, about 5,000,000 pounds while the Federal report includes resales by warehousemen or others.

On the basis of State reports, 127,250,872 pounds of tobacco were sold at Georgia's 19 markets this year. Officials estimate that of this total about 5,000,000 pounds represent sales by out-of-State producers. We have no way of telling whether or not sales by Georgia farmers at markets in Florida and South Carolina will offset this figure.

At any rate, it was another highly successful tobacco season and farmers are to be congratulated.

More Doctors Coming

The American Medical Association's recent report on the education of doctors shows that whereas 1948 marked a 10-year low in the number of physicians graduating from medical schools, the year 1953 will see a record high.

The AMA bases its prediction on the anticipated record enrollment this Fall of about 6,900 freshman students in the nation's 71 AMA-approved medical schools.

Right now there is a definite shortage of physicians. Some small communities are entirely without trained medical personnel. In other places the supply is inadequate.

For those communities the AMA report is encouraging.

So, if you're waiting for a doctor, just be patient. There should be one along in at least four years.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Eisenhower a Candidate in 1950?

WASHINGTON—Gen. Eisenhower's recent speech before the American Bar Association has started a new flow of speculation over his availability as a presidential candidate in 1952. There has been no agreement between those engaging in the speculation as to which of the two major parties he may align himself with.

Some profess to see him as a likely contender for the Republican nomination, while others look on him as a Democrat. The truth of it is that no one is able to speak with any authority on the subject for the reason that he is yet to indicate—publicly at least—what his political predilections, if any, may be.

Like most men who have chosen the armed services for a career, Gen. Eisenhower probably has no political affiliation. If he has any inclination either as a Democrat or a Republican, he has been careful to conceal it. He has been attached to the military service for so long that his earlier background offers little in the way of a clue.

All other things being equal, however, it is more reasonable to suppose that he is more inclined toward the Democrats than the Republicans because it was a Democratic administration which advanced him to the role of Allied Commander on the European front in the late war. Before his selection for that important post by President Roosevelt and the then Chief of Staff, Gen. George Marshall, he was merely one of a number of more or less obscure officers in our highly competent military establishment. Naturally, he may be expected to feel a certain amount of gratitude for the opportunity presented him to develop his talents as a great military commander.

The chances are, also, that Gen. Eisenhower voted the Democratic ticket in the last presidential election. We may judge this from certain revelations contained in his book published after the election. In it he told why he never could have allowed himself to be an opponent of President Truman, either for the Democratic nomination or as the Republican candidate.

At the Potsdam conference immediately after the defeat of the Germans, he related, Mr. Truman had offered to support him for President even to the point of stepping aside in his favor, if the General would consent to serve. Eisenhower turned down the offer, and it was his sense of duty and military discipline that caused him to refuse to run later when the clamor arose in both parties for his nomination.

In the light of that revelation which he made in his book, it is hardly conceivable that he went out and voted for the Dewey-Warren ticket last November.

For another thing, Mr. Truman being the strong party man that he is, it is not likely that he would have offered his support to Gen. Eisenhower in the 1948 presidential contest if he had not been satisfied in his own mind that the General had a firm foundation as a Democrat. The President's political background disputes any other surmise.

None of this is to say, however, that the popular military hero might not be persuaded to accept the Republican nomination in 1952, if the circumstances were otherwise propitious. Having held himself aloof from politics for so many years, he might feel free to accept either party label, if it did not involve any surrender of the basic philosophy he holds.

In his St. Louis speech before the American Bar group the General seemed to take a middle ground between the Left and Right extremes in both parties. He was somewhere between President Truman and Senator Taft of Ohio, who more nearly epitomizes Republican Old Guard sentiment.

Various reports are heard about different elements in both major parties making overtures to General Eisenhower to run in 1952. Undoubtedly he has a host of well wishers among Democrats as well as Republicans. This was illustrated by the widespread movement launched in both parties last year to gain him the Presidential nomination.

The chances are that he might have been nominated by the Democrats at Philadelphia if the General had not come out with a flat renunciation at the last minute. Those urging him as the party standard bearer acted more from the feeling that he would have been easier to elect than Mr. Truman, who was running behind in all of the polls.

The President must feel grateful for the way General Eisenhower relieved him from a tough situation. For this reason the suspicion has grown that he will be Mr. Truman's personal choice for the nomination as his successor when his present term expires. The way the President keeps the General before the public by bringing him into every important official picture, where his presence is appropriate, tends to feed this suspicion.

Looking into events this far ahead, it does seem certain that General Eisenhower will figure prominently in the next Presidential contest in one way or another.

It Adds Up To Grave Injustice

There are, in the immortal words of the comic character, Snuffy Smith, "shiftless skonks" in all professions and fields of endeavor. Happily, they are in the minority.

The only reason we have rent control laws is because of this minority among landlords. Those among them with the soul and ethics of the man-eating shark have been so rapacious and have so ground the faces of the poor that Congress has unwillingly kept in effect a rent-control law which, inadequately financed and therefore skeleton-staffed, has even less chance of operating equitably in an otherwise decontrolled economy.

Troubles of others is, and ought to be, grist in the newspaper mill. I still shudder to think what would happen to the many persons at the mercy of vicious landlords if the laws were lifted. I have read reports about the general average being an increase of seven percent, but I find this is in the field of middle and higher house and apartment rentals. There are increases of 40 and even 100 percent in the lower-class rentals.

Power Slowly but surely, however, in the grist which comes to the mill, I have been finding what seemed to me stances of grave injustice to landlords. As usual, as it is the poor tenant who usually gets gulled with exorbitant rent increases, so it is the small landlord who gets kicked around most by the rent-control office.

I am of the definite opinion that Congress owes it to the nation to review, revise and reconsider the rent-control law. If it is something the nation needs, then let Congress say so and write a fair and equitable bill and finance it.

I also am of the definite opinion the bill now allows the rent-control offices too much unsupervised power and that it allows any rent-control office which so desires to carry on a campaign of revenge and fear.

Local A short time ago a landlord in a low-rental house killed a tenant and himself. The house had been remodeled and the back "apartment" had to be used by any and all persons going to the back porch. This led to friction. An effort to raise the rent was refused, as was eviction, and the shooting followed.

Later friends of the widow came to me and said that the rent-control office had ordered maximum rents on this property substantially reduced and also had made the reductions retroactive for periods of more than a year.

This did smack of revenge or unusual punishment.

I personally object, as I believe all Americans do, to any law which has retroactive features. I was informed the retroactive feature of the rent bill was mandatory. This I still doubt, believing somewhere in the law there is a paragraph—maybe in the small print—which allows the director some discretion. If not, it is wrong.

Then I noted a newspaper release from the rent-control office that the widow would, even after reductions, have a gross rental income of $103.50.

Wrong Well, that interested me and I got some information. I think it convicts the rent control office of either revenge action or, at best, a very unfair and unreasonable act.

The widow has, for some reason, saved through the months all her bills for utilities, so an accurate check can be made. After deducting fixed expenses—and this can be exactly determined, something the rent-control office did not do—she would have left $26.73 per month to provide herself and two small children with food and clothing and whatever medicines, recreation and so on she might need. This was fixed expenses and did not include maintenance or depreciation.

This is so gross a miscarriage of justice that it smells of revenge and will so be regarded if the rent-control office does not reconsider and allow an equitable solution. The release of the statement about $103.50 per month gave a gravely erroneous impression.

Another I have a heavy file. From it I will take one more case. A widow lived in a house and rented rooms. In one of them lived a man and his wife. The wife was about to have a baby. The husband was arrested and convicted on a Peeping Tom charge and the widow, who lived alone, was afraid to have him in the house. There is a file containing at least 50 papers. I have a signed affidavit from the police the man is a bad character. He still is in the house. The rent-control office says it can't put him out.

But — and this gives me concern — after some weeks of controversy about the case, this woman, too, was notified her rents had been reduced, also retroactively.

Need There is, I believe, very real reason for an investigation of these cases by the proper Federal authority. And assuredly, whatever is done by Congress should include protective regulations so that no office could possibly engage in anything which even resembled revenge actions.

I say this knowing that there are landlords who are merciless and cruel and who have brought down upon the whole business the controls in effect. There is need for some law to protect people against them, as rules were made in stocks and bonds to protect against bucketshop operators and fake stock deals.

The plain truth is that while we have a surplus of housing in the high-rental field, we have a desperate shortage in medium and low-rental units. It is a complicated and pitiful story.

But all the injustice isn't on one side.

Ringers, Leaners and Misses

This is No. 2 in the series of fortnightly round-ups of my current likes and loathings. Each item is graded in terms of the old back-lot game of horseshoe pitching, and for the benefit of city slickers to whom a horseshoe is something nailed to the hoof of a two-dollar bet, let me explain that "ringer" means a perfect pitch, "leaner," so-so, and "miss," so-what.

Ringer Paul Douglas in the not-as-yet-released movie, "Everybody Does It." As you probably know, this reformed radio announcer hit like the proverbial ton of coal as a light comedian in "Letter to Three Wives" and "It Happens Every Spring." In this new Nunnally Johnson movie, he now demonstrates that he can also reach the high-water mark as a low comedian.

The art of siding up to a rib and tickling it with a sledgehammer has all but vanished in these parlous and deadpan times, and it's my hint and hope that Hollywood will continue to give Douglas all the celluloid he needs to flail around in.

Commissioner John Murtaugh: When Mr. M. started his investigation of the ticket brokers of New York, I wondered if he were a politico out to make headlines and votes, or a reformer with his head in the clouds and clouds in his head. Well, recently I shared some truffles and talk with him, and he impressed me as a down-to-sod chap who is completely sincere in his efforts to give this tough problem a realistic workout. For my lunch money, he's a better than competent public official, and it's my hunch that he'll come pretty close to getting the public a square deal on Times Square.

Doris Emery's candy shop at 152 West 57th St. For three nostalgic decades, I've been looking for the manna of my childhood—cinnamon sticks, spiced gumdrops, candy corn and twisted licorice whips. Well, I can now report that my quest is ended, and that whenever I feel like catering to my palate's second childhood I ankle over to the shop on 57th Street and say, "Two of those, three of these and one of them." Sure, the stuff sells for a buck a pound or better, but only a stinker quibbles about the check when he's feasting with the gods.

Leaner The seating arrangements for drama critics. The other night I finally got around to seeing "The Madwoman of Chaillot," rated by the Critics Circle as the best foreign play of the year.

I saw it from a seat in the balcony, and when the show was over I couldn't help wondering what all the shouting—or, rather, whispering—had been about. From the reviews, I'd been led to believe that Martita Hunt was the runaway sensation of the play and Estelle Winwood just middlin' good. But from where I sat, it seemed just the opposite—I could hear every word that Estelle said, while Miss Hunt came through like a DX station on a 1926 heutrodyne.

Ever since, I've been wondering whether "Madwoman" would have gotten the award if the critics had caught it from the eighth row, balcony, instead of the first eight rows, orchestra. And if I may go a wonder further: Since reviews are read by folks who sit in the balcony as well as those who can afford the orchestra, why wouldn't it be a good idea for the drama boys to scatter around a bit?

I'm not suggesting that the critics make a regular thing of sitting up where they receive spirit messages, but I do think it would pay off if they would occasionally review a show under the conditions imposed on 75 percent of the people for whom they write. Right now, to make an easy comparison, it's as if the book reviewer got a complete volume, while the ordinary reader had to settle for a book with half the pages missing.

Miss The FCC ban on give-away shows. I don't quite follow the loping logic of this arbitrary decision. If give-away programs are lotteries, why doesn't the FCC swear out a warrant and arrest the people who produce them?

According to the papers, the networks are all set to slug this one out in the courts, and on general principles I hope the two-bit bureaucrats get their lumps.

And don't get the impression that I'm fronting for the give-aways. They bore the bejabbers out of me, and I think that what they ought to shoot is not the works but the MC, and what they ought to break is not the bank but the sponsor's head.

Next World's Largest City?

SAO PAULO, Brazil—Economically, the State of Sao Paulo is the close-cropped tail which wags the gargantuan Brazilian mongrel. With less than 3 percent of Brazil's 3,286,170 square miles, Sao Paulo produces 70 percent of the nation's coffee and cotton, 50 percent of its rice, 35 percent of its corn, 54 percent of its meat and 47 percent of its potatoes. Sao Paulo's nine million inhabitants constitute less than 25 percent of the Brazilian population. Yet they earn 50 percent of the national income, use 52 percent of the nation's electric power, produce 67 percent of Brazil's industrial output.

Sao Paulo, capital of the State of the same name, is the fastest growing city in the world. Its population was 65,000 in 1890, 235,000 in in 1900, 579,000 in 1930, 1,330,000 in 1940. Today it claims two million and next year's census will probably prove it true.

But it is not so much Sao Paulo's growth and size as its spirit and progress with which the visitor is impressed. Sao Paulo is undeniably the most modern city, not only in South but maybe in both Americas. It has 30 or 40 new skyscrapers erected in the past decade, finishes a new house each 12 minutes of every working hour. It has an excellent transportation system and is drawing plans for a subway. Its traffic plan is well along, despite the fact that the downtown area is laid out most irregularly, and there are numerous overhead express ways. Sao Paulo apparently lacks neither imagination nor money. Its principle downtown thoroughfare—a four-road, 18-lane boulevard—is built right over a now-tunneled river which formerly meandered through the city. Its library is 20 stories high, it has a new 3,000-bed hospital, it is building a great new airport to take care of the 16 airlines which fly more than a hundred flights a day between here and Rio.

But perhaps the best illustration of Sao Paulo's ingenuity—as well as the greatest single factor behind its mushrooming growth—is to be found 40 miles away, at the foot of the 2,500-foot plateau upon which the city sets. Here is the hydro-electric plant which produces the power—reportedly the cheapest in the world—which accounts for Sao Paulo's industrialization.

It is no ordinary project. Conceived and built by an American engineer named A. W. K. Billings, it involved the daring plan of changing, from west to east, the course of a great many small rivers which flow on the plateau. These rivers, originating but a few miles from the coast, previously reached the ocean at Buenos Aires, 2,500 miles away. By placing strategic dams—and even, in some instances, setting up pumping stations to carry the waters back up hill—a reservoir 34 square miles has been formed at the very edge of a precipice 2,449 feet high.

From this summit, in seven pipelines five feet in diameter, the water plunges downward nearly five thousand feet at an average angle of more than 45 degrees. By the time it gets to the bottom, it exerts a pressure of a thousand pounds to the square inch on the 14 peltant wheels which drive the seven generators. Some idea of the size of the operation may be gained from the fact that each wheel carries 20 buckets, each of which weighs more than 1,100 pounds. The seven units now in use have a combined total of 570,000 horsepower or 420,000,000 watts. It is thus the seventh in size in the world as well as the only one of its type and drop. An eighth unit is now being installed and plans are already under way for nine and ten as Sao Paulo, whose power consumption shows a regular 10 percent annual increase, continues to grow and industrialize.

The great pipelines running down the mountainside are clearly visible from the coast, a fact which causes Brazil's military men considerable concern. For the plant not only provides power for Sao Paulo, where most of the nation's industries are located, but also helps Rio. And one well-placed bomb, they realize, could knock it out entirely, since the 260-mile-an-hour jet velocity in the pipelines would make them like gigantic fire hoses out of control if they were ever broken.

One bomb did fall on the power-house during the 1932 revolution. But fortunately it was a small one and struck a glancing blow.

That was the revolution, incidentally, where the tiny State of Sao Paulo held out against all the rest of Brazil for seven months.

"We'd have whipped them all, too, if we'd just had a navy," one Paulista recalls defiantly. "It was the blockade of Santos that beat us."

There is no denying that much of the rest of Brazil has always been jealous of Sao Paulo and resentful of its progress and prosperity. All of Brazil's recent history, political and economic, has been centered around the none-too-friendly rivalry between Sao Paulo and Rio. The latter would have been passed in population long since had not Getulio Vargas vetoed a bill to allow Sao Paulo to annex suburban areas which are undeniably integral parts of the city. The nation's only steel mill was located at an unlikely spot as a compromise between the two cities. A projected oil refinery is now scheduled for Rio to the great disgust of Sao Paulo citizens, who point out that their industries use the bulk of the nation's petroleum products.

Rio continues to hold the whiphand politically, if not economically, but the Paulistas hope to change that next year when their Governor, Adhemar de Barros, seems the most likely successful candidate for the Presidency.

Ultimately, of course, Sao Paulo will outdistance Rio in influence as well as in size. Already the third city in South America, it has its eye and its efforts on the day it will be the largest—as well as the fastest growing—in the world.

Reviewing its astounding record and seeing its continuing aggressiveness, one is not too sure that it won't.

No Excuse

Editor Constitution: A recent letter to the editor contained a defense of force and violence used in the South by a comparison of it with that used at the recent Peekskill, N. Y., riot.

The letter must have pleased all the hate and violence mongers. Adolf Hitler could have used such a letter.

Evil in the States north of the Mason and Dixon Line is not a justification of evil to the south of said line, not if any truth has come out of Israel.

When the rights of individuals are taken away, as was the case in New York, where a group was denied the privilege of safely going to a peaceful political gathering and concert in a deserted location, democracy has simply, for the time involved, been cast out of the back door like an unwanted cat.

Thought-Provoking

Editor Constitution: I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the pleasure that I get from the articles of Mrs. Doris Lockerman. My attention was drawn to her column during the extraordinary session of the General Assembly of this year. I do not believe that a more accurate analysis of our political situation in Georgia could be written than the articles she wrote during this session.

I recommend this column to any other reader of your paper who is not now reading it. Whether the reader agrees with Mrs. Lockerman or not, she certainly gives some food for thought. It is my suggestion that her column be placed on the regular editorial pages.

Editor Constitution: Do we have different laws for "white and colored?"

A Negro policeman drunk and promptly fired. A city official arrested repeatedly for same offense, but not dismissed.

A judge charged with drunkenness and gambling has not resigned.

An attack on a little colored girl by a white man received little publicity, but suppose the situation had been reversed?

Chester Was Glad To Get Back

Nobody wanted to come home but Chester. He does not like the mountains any more. He used to, but that was before he fell for that lady cat down the street. Now he does not wish to be away from her side even to eat his meals. In fact, he does not even come home for meals any more. He stays with her, and I have had a communication from the neighbor who owns Chester's spouse that she is thinking of sending me a bill for Chester's board. She is fond of Chester, she says, and likes to have him around, but he is a hearty trencherman, and feeding him is getting to be quite an expense.

We had a terrible time getting Chester to leave home in the first place. It used to be that all you had to do was blow the horn and yell for him and he would come running. He was a traveling cat. He loved to go. This time when we blew and called him, he headed for the woods. When we finally caught him and put him in the car, we had to hold him. Every time we had to stop—and you know how often you have to stop when you are carrying four younguns on a trip who are always wanting to stop for a drink of water or something — Chester would jump out of the car and head back down the road for home. Both the citizens of Ball Ground and Jasper and the workers at a hillside sawmill were startled at the sight of a somewhat portly and flustered character, meaning me, chasing Chester down the road, hurling maledictions at him.

But that was on the trip up. Coming back, Chester was r'aring to go. Just as soon as we started loading up the car he came hightailing out of the woods and jumped in the car and climbed up and draped himself over the spare tire and starting meowing impatiently for us to hurry up and hit the road. All the way home he kept fussing at me to drive faster, and as soon as we turned off the four-lane highway and he knew he was nearing home, he could not stand it any longer. He started stealing all over the car, trying to find a window to jump out of. Finally he climbed up in my lap and stuck his nose out the window by the driver's seat and when we passed the house where his old lady and two small sons (who look just like their old man) live, he gave one spring and landed in the middle of the driveway.

That was three days ago, and I didn't see him again until this morning. He came in looking a little worn and battered—I think maybe another gentleman cat had moved in during his absence—but very happy. He came in and spoke pleasantly to all and went over and climbed up on top of the radio and went to sleep. Come Fall, he always sleeps on the radio, for Eva keeps it running all day, listening to the soap operas, and the tubes and machinery heat up and make the top of the radio glow warmly. It is a fine place for a cat to sleep, but it makes it a little difficult to operate the radio. If you do not like the program which is coming in, you have to go over and lift up Chester and twiddle the dials and put him back down again. There is no use chasing him off the radio. He will sleep there until the furnace goes on, later on, and the house is warm all over. Sometimes he wakes up and yawns and stretches and tunes out a station at a crucial moment in the soap opera when the heroine is about to take poison, and this enrages Eva, who chases him out of the house with a broom.

Chester had another sound reason for wanting to come home in a hurry. About the middle of the Summer a lean and hungry hound dog took up at our house and after we had fed him awhile, he naturally wanted to do something to show his appreciation. So he decided he would run off the place that cat which was annoying us by his presence. He spent about three days stalking Chester, until Chester finally turned on him and ran him about a quarter of a mile down the mountain.

Chester is convinced, though, that the hound finally got revenge on him. What happened was this: The hound finally came creeping back and decided to bed down for the night on the glider on the front porch, his head down right next to the screen to the window in the boys' room. Chester was sleeping with one of the boys, as is his custom when you don't watch him closely, when the youngster woke in the middle of the night, scratching chiggers and yelling for me to come put something on the chigger bites. So I rise groggily and find a loud-smelling ointment called Chigger-Chaser, which is fine medicine for chiggers.

I dab Chigger-Chaser on the chigger bites and then I observe Chester, lying there snoring away, dead to the world. So on impulse I reach over and dab a considerable amount of Chigger-Chaser right on the end of Chester's nose. When the strong aroma of the Chigger-Chaser penetrates Chester's olfactories, I never saw such violent reaction. He leaps about four feet in the air with a startled squall and peers wildly about. Then you could see his brain work like lightning. That durn dog, he figured, had done this strange thing to him. So he scoots down to the foot of the bed with his tail all buzzed up and pokes his head right up against the screen and utters a wild screech of rage.

The poor old hound, who is sound asleep with his head not more than two feet away from the screen, wakes with caterwaul in his ears and figures that Chester is loose and is about to claw his eyes out. So he utters a great yelp of fright and tries to leap from the glider, which is a swinging type, and as he leaps, the glider swings and he falls head over heels on the porch, all sprawled out. He finally scrambles to his feet, though, and the last I see of him, he is merely a blur in the darkness, running frenziedly and howling in terror.

I keep trying to tell Chester that he falsely accused the hound in this matter, but I think he still believes that it was the dog who somehow managed to sneak up on him and put that strong-smelling stuff on his nose.

Lean Years And the Fat

Periodically, down through the ages, business has moved in cycles. About every seven years, barring the interruption of wars and one kind of a deal or another, we have had booms and busts.

It is recorded in the Book of Genesis that Pharaoh dreamed of seven fat cattle coming up from the Nile and seven lean cattle followed and "did eat up the seven well-favored and fat kine." And Pharaoh dreamed again and, behold, seven full stalks of grain appeared and seven thin stalks sprang up and "the thin ears swallowed up the seven rank and full ears."

You will remember that Joseph, an interpreter of dreams and some kind of an economist, was called in by Pharaoh for consultation, and he said unto Pharaoh, "The seven good kine are seven years, and also the seven empty ears . . . they shall be seven years of famine." And so through the ages the lean years are always eating up the fat ones.

Many explanations have been given for this phenomenon. It has even been traced to the spots on the sun. But my father, who got his education as an omnivorous reader of newspapers and who was one of the best-informed men I ever knew, had a better explanation for it.

He said, "A man can make a complete fool of himself in one night, but it takes the whole population about seven years."

ALTAR STAIRS By John Marvin Rast

The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun.—Ecclesiastes 1:9.

Flippantly we find ourselves saying there is nothing new under the sun. When we do we give vent to despondency.

The same elements may be in the universe today that were in it yesterday and ages ago, but it is not necessarily the same universe.

God makes our world anew from day to day. No two sunrises or sunsets are identical.

And in the personal realm we cannot say "that which is done is that which shall be done."

Truly he that is in Christ is a new creature, with old things having passed away.

Shakes His Head at New Capitol

WASHINGTON—This day I have spent dodging red-hot rivets in a little roofing job. A little $5,000,000 job, that is, on the U. S. Capitol. It's coming alone fine, too, under the expert ministrations of two shifts of steelworkers, who get $44 per day when they work overtime. I don't think the place is going to leak when they get through; neither is it ever going to be the same. And as for the snuff boxes, which have been causing Senators to sneeze ever since 1859, I don't know what's going to happen to them. Neither does Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, who is patrolling these precincts and sadly shaking his head.

The irreverent ones, says the old-fashioned gentleman from Massachusetts, claim the remodeled Senate chamber will look like a cocktail lounge de luxe. He disagrees. The marble wainscoting, the stainless steel ceiling (painted a neat cream color, of course), the lack of daylight and the stone columns are going to turn the cheery old place, he says, into a replica of a First National Bank. Cold, clammy and lacking in human warmth. I'm afraid I must agree.

Sen. Lodge made a vain fight to keep the Senate the way it was. By all means fix the roof, he cried, but leave the pre-Civil War Pullman decor intact. What was wrong, he demanded, with a rug of parlor-car green, woodwork of mahogany brown and walls the shade of fresh putty? Why throw away the wonderfully quaint glass panels in the ceiling?

"There seems," he moaned, "to be a desire amounting almost to a mania to eliminate all traces of bygone architectural style and artistic effects so that the whole of Washington will have a dreary, boneyard classical uniformity."

Sen. Lodge continued his battle to retain the Senate as Architect Thomas U. Walter designed it nearly a century ago, but his fellow lawgivers were unimpressed. By some legislative abacadabra, they managed not even to vote on the Senator's plea.

Now it's too late. The glass in the ceiling with the State seals has gone. Air hammers have chipped down the plaster in the galleries to the ancient red brick. A duct to carry off excess rainwater at the moment is threading through the press galleries. The continued rattlety-bang has so stirred up the cockroaches that fumigators have been killing them off as they emerged from the gilded picture frames.

I don't suppose there is any better way to tell how the historic chamber is going to look than to quote from the continuing debate between Sen. Lodge and Sen. Carl Hayden, of Arizona, Chairman of the Rules Committee.

Sen. Hayden explained that the gallery walls would have a wainscoting of marble four feet high and that the doors and wood trim would be replaced.

"Are those nice old doorframes with the scroll work on them going to do?" asked Sen. Lodge.

"Exactly," said Sen. Hayden.

"That is a great pity," said Sen. Lodge.

Sen. Hayden said the treatment of the ceiling contemplated a series of decorative coffers. Sen. Lodge said what were coffers and why did anybody want to put 'em on the roof? Sen. Hayden said he was no architect; he did not know. "And in the center of the ceiling there will be introduced an ornamental rosette," he continued. "A what?" roared Sen. Lodge.

"A rosette, the field of which will be a carved glass," replied Sen. H. "Air-conditioning will be introduced through perforations in the stainless steel ceiling and——"

Sen. Lodge subsided unhappily. What was the use

Mr. Plumley's 'Prosperity Revenue' Scheme

NEW YORK—I have to use matchsticks for long division and, in economics, I only know, I think, that if you put more in than you check out you ought to have some left at the end of the month. But you have heard of intuition, surely, and so, wild, untutored, intellectual barefoot that I am, I want to lead you by the hand to a happy land where two and two don't make a bit of difference.

I introduce you to the gorgeous beauties of House Bill 6135, "The Prosperity Revenue Act," which smacks of Eleanor the Great, Elliott doing cross-handed licks on the cash register, Maury Maverick, Bill Veeck, Bubblehead Wallace, Upton Sinclair, Professor Weenie and old Doc Townsend.

This bill comes from Charles Albert Plumley, member at large—stop him, Newt'—from Vermont, a venerable statesman of 74, with a distinguished record as Principal, Superintendent of Schools and Tax Collector in Northfield, and consultant on taxes. His father was a member of Congress for three terms around the turn of the century and he brings to the problems of taxation and finance the fine, clear mind of a man who has been hit over the head with blunt instruments of economic heresy.

You may catch a faint idea of his promise from the brief description on the back: "A bill to provide for the equitable assessment of taxes; to provide adequate social security for all; to solve the labor problem completely; to untax business and thus encourage full and efficient production and full employment; to cut the hidden sales taxes out of prices to reduce the cost of living; to collect enough revenue to support the Government, reduce the national debt and revalue the dollar; to make the tax rate automatically adjustable, to stabilize our economy on a rising standard of living, and"—for full measure—"for other purposes."

Article 1 repeals the income tax, the estate, gift and Social Security taxes, all war taxes and the taxes on telephone and telegraph service and retailers' and manufacturers' excise taxes and the import taxes.

The business income tax is to be replaced by another income tax, but I find that paragraph starts with a provision that "every business from the first of January, 1950, shall be exempt from income taxes" by using trustees' accounting. I mired badly in the trustees' accounting, but it seems a benevolent muddle and I still felt fine. It says: "Every business shall file a return to show its tax exemption within 60 days after the end of the year" and the accounts shall show current value of the money invested with the corresponding value of all outstanding securities. You get credit for inflationary losses.

In a government bureau, the appropriation for the accounting period shall be considered "business income" and the unspent portion is to be regarded as "profit." I think the employees get a dividend then.

Business may plow back as much as it pleases from profits provided that enough profits be left to cover the income-tax liability on the whole profit—

Wait a minute, just a minute, friend, I thought I said the income tax was to be repealed. Well, I did. Sure I did. Here is where it says that:

"The following chapters of the Internal Revenue Code are hereby repealed as indicated in the following table of contents—"

Income tax.

Oh, but then it says, "replaced by—income tax."

But it isn't the detail, it is the spirit, the tone, the beautiful intent of Mr. Plumley's Prosperity Revenue Act or sterling shotgun panacea that I love.

"Sec. 207. Income-tax rate," it says here. "The tax applicable on gross personal income shall not exceed 25 percent, approximately the point of diminishing returns. The withholding tax rate shall be 20 percent, expected to yield $42,000,000,000," but it shall be adjusted to balance the budget and reduce the debt at a reasonable rate toward the revaluation of the dollar. And "every business shall withhold from all payments to persons as consumers the single, flat-rate income tax on gross personal incomes at the flat rate—"

Paraguay Leader Named in Party Upheaval

ASUNCION, Paraguay — (AP) — Congress named Federico Chaves provisional president of Paraguay yesterday. It was the sixth change of administrations for Paraguay in 17 months.

Chaves, who was the foreign minister and a Supreme Court justice, succeeds Dr. Felipe Molas Lopez, a 50-year-old dentist, who resigned Saturday night. No violence attended the switch, which grew out of another internal upheaval in the Colorado party.

2-WEEK 'BRUSH-UP'

Reserves Off for Duty On Carrier

Thirty-one Navy fighter and torpedo planes will roar out of the Naval Air Station here this morning headed for Pensacola, Fla., and a rendezvous with an aircraft carrier—the USS Cabot.

At the controls of these planes will be members of the Naval Reserve—the so-called "weekend pilots" — who are taking advantage of their annual two weeks' active duty to brush up on carrier landings and the art of waging war from a floating landing field.

In an atmosphere reminiscent of the war years, approximately 200 officers and men of Squadron CVLG 57 will pack up this morning at the Naval Air Station. They will proceed to Pensacola for brief training before boarding the carrier.

Commanded by Lt. Cmdr. G. L. Wrenn, the squadron is composed of nine torpedo planes and 22 fighter aircraft.

Members gathered at the Air Station yesterday afternoon to get last-minute instructions, complete the "paper work" and bolster their morale with a movie about life aboard a carrier.

Operations of the squadron will be carried out under conditions as similar to those of wartime as possible. Gunnery and bombing runs will be part of the training.

Most of the pilots are seasoned fliers who saw combat service during the war. This is their chance to "get back in the harness" for a spell and most of them are loking forward to this training cruise in the blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Can YOU Solve This Clever Little Puzzle?
It's a sample of the kind of puzzles you'll enjoy solving in this new $75,000.00 Contest. See "how to solve it" explanation below.

The Correct (Last) Name for This Puzzle Appears Below:

John Paul JONES — Jesse JAMES — John ADAMS
Alfred E. SMITH — Patrick HENRY — Ulysses S. GRANT

This is a lesson in how to solve a set of puzzles that can lead you to a cash reward of as much as $50,000.00. Please read carefully the explanation which follows:

Each puzzle represents a well-known name and in the puzzles there are shown various objects, letters and abbreviations, with plus and minus signs indicating whether to add or subtract the letters that make these up. Your job is to recognize the objects and clues, and according to the plus and minus signs work out the correct name for each puzzle.

But let's work out the sample puzzle above to see just how it works:

There we see a LIGHTHOUSE, to which we add N M (abbreviation of New Mexico) as directed by the plus sign. We thus now have L I G H T H O U S E N M. We are next told (by the minus sign) to subtract what is obviously a LOG, so we cross out the letters L O G, leaving the letters I H T H U S E N M. Then we are told to take away the letter U and what is evidently a HEN. Thus, crossing out U and H E N, we are finally left with the letters I T H S M. So we fit those letters into the squares to the right of the equal sign, and since they fit exactly (five letters, five squares) it appears that we are right thus far.

But there still remains one thing to do. We must unscramble and re-arrange those letters so as to form a well-known name. What name can it be? Can it be THIMS? No! Can it be MITHS? No! Can it be SMITH? Why, of course! And to verify our answer, sure enough there's the name Alfred E. SMITH in the list under the puzzle.

Get the idea? Then by all means mail coupon below for 33 official puzzles and full details. They'll be sent you entirely FREE of obligation.

NOW TRY YOUR SKILL

BELOW ARE FOUR OF THE 33 OFFICIAL PUZZLES. If you can solve them, be sure to mail coupon for the official set of 33 with full details. No obligation.

MILDRED SEYDELL SAYS

Hornets Haunt Belgium Farms

Hornets are as bad in Belgium as in Georgia, and in certain places mosquitoes sing, although the country has few snakes and no chiggers. But just like farmers in the States, Max and I are picking the bugs off our potato and tomato plants. Over here they call these bugs "Colorado" and the natives look at me as if I had personally brought over the pest. With a frown the farmers say: "You are an American. They came from America."

Max and I are cutting our farming teeth on Channing Cope's "Front Porch Farmer." As we have bought a country place for the weekends it makes appropriate reading. You should hear me trying to explain in French Yellow River Farm and its master. My French is so halting and my tone so glowing in descriptions of Dixie that these Belgian men of the soil get mixed up sometimes and think I'm talking about heaven.

Finding a hornet's nest in our woods, we quickly boiled water for the massacre. But by the time we got the water across the field and poured upon the nest it was just hot enough to make those hornets good and mad!

However, it was nothing compared with the angry buzzing of a group of Belgian business men discussing the remarks of our Mr. Hoffman, Administrator of the Marshall Plan. In Brussels recently he chided the industrialists and said they were not making a great enough effort to export to the States. And told them plainly that they would have to earn more dollars or else!

"It is due to America that we can't export more," the Belgians protested. "Americans have developed their industries and they don't need our goods. We used to export cottons, woolens, and especially linens, but your industries have developed a cotton that looks as fine as linen and has the added quality of not wrinkling so easily. It is hard for our linens to compete. And of course you protect your textile industry with tariff. Instead of complaining Mr. Hoffman should have explained to up how we can sell when there is no demand. And how can we create a demand for our products when similar ones can be bought cheaper in America, and if they could not be the Americans would cry for a higher tariff."

Besides textiles, Belgium has for export steel, iron, coal. "I think Mr. Hoffman should realize "snapped one steel magnate, that America is not going to buy heavily of these. In fact we have been selling large orders of steel to South America. But now that the States have caught up with the demands for home consumption that market is closed to us for we can't compete with the United States because you have modern machinery and modern methods and we are working on old. In Belgium it takes a dozen or more men to do what one man in the States can do by pressing a button. Our cost of production is far ahead of yours. Naturally where you want to sell steel we can't."

After travelling in Europe studying conditions it is my personal opinion that in place of giving our purse we Americans should give the world a program built on high purposes for right thinking and right living. And start by making America strong morally!

Pouring our money into Europe is not making friends for us. I feel it more every time I travel around over here. It is as plain as the nose on your face that no debtor loves his money lender when the time of reckoning is at hand and we can't go on with the Marshall Plan forever.

Col. and Mrs. John Day are in Brussels being delightfully entertained. Atlanta will soon be welcoming them back home as they sail Sept. 7 on an Army transport. Mrs. Readie Ashurst, of Atlanta, is also in Brussels. She loved Switzerland, especially its tranquility. My son Paul, Jr. and his wife Helen, drove into Brussels yesterday. To those of you who want to know about bringing your car over they report it is wonderful. Roads mostly good, gas easy to get, and if there is as many as three in the car, even cheaper than paying railroad fare. Your letters are welcomed.

'THAT MAN'—Julio, famous hair stylist from New York, currently visiting at Davison's, runs through his paces for Miss Evelyn Shipp, operator in their newly decorated beauty salon. Mrs. C. A. Ledford lends her head for the demonstration.

MEET MR. JULIO

Homegrown Hair Stylist Shears Shaggy-Dog Look

You have read accounts of lamb-like gals being led to the shearing block of Paris-trained barbers for demonstration purposes, and you have viewed with alarm the results. You have declared yourself firmly on the subject of "personality hair-dos," and wondered audibly whose personality they were expressing. You go on pinning your hair up in scraggly little pigtails at night and combing it into a scraggly version of your personality by day, and set your chin obstinately as fashions come and go.

But one day there comes into your life a man. Well, not that sort of thing—this one has nothing on his mind but hair—other people's hair. He talks with you about trends and styles and methods, and meanwhile his eyes wander absently to your crowning glory.

You arrange an appointment for the next day and spend the evening scrubbing your hair fiercely, being of the same upbringing as the housewife who cleans house thoroughly before the cleaning woman comes.

You approach your appointment with the mingled feelings of a mouse joyfully charging into a well-cheesed trap and a spinster going into an empty bedroom. You look critically at the operators as they bustle by, for you have a simple minded conviction that men who sell ties should wear pretty ties, and people who sell cooking utensils should have speaking acquaintance with a stove, and hairdressers should not resemble first cousins of a mop. The girls look depressingly pretty, and you wish suddenly you hadn't come, for you're thoroughly acquainted with the raw material you are offering, and you see no reason to hope for favorable results.

You wait, quivering, thinking wildly of dashing for refuge in the ladies' room. Then, calmly, the man approaches, sets to work with the swift, sure slashes of a fifty-second degree butcher, and you suddenly relax. It's too late now to struggle. He talks quietly as he works and you realize suddenly that there isn't a trace of anything in his speech but maybe a little New York. No French, no Italian, not even phony French or Italian. You are interested now, and you make mental notes as he talks.

He received all his training in this country and believes that it is quite possible to whip up a smart head of hair without going to Paris to learn how. He is a member of the American Hair Designers Institute and has spent most of the last 12 or 14 years traveling all over the country relaying the newest methods and fashions to all the little South Georgia and South Dakota beauty operators so that the girls on Peachtree Street and Main Streets all over the country can poop their hair up or droop it down in cadence. He isn't arty at all, but would pass any day for a serious minded successful business man with a wife and three children, which he is.

He absent-mindedly strips away your home permanent and remarks that there are two sides to every face. One is usually better than the other. You leer a little for you're pretty sure you have him there, but he nonchalantly collects globs of hair from your lap, and continues his discourse. The trend this year, he says gently, is away from the shaggy-dog look which a lot of women who do their own hair, and here he looks at you a little severely, manage to arrive at, and toward a smoother, more sculptured look. The best side of the face is given a sort of swept back treatment, culminating in softness on the side of the face that needs it.

You close your eyes then and suffer yourself to be Pinned-up, Dried, and Combed-out in complete silence. You watch in awe as you emerge in the mirror, a reasonable facsimile of one of the gals you have always thought of as Smart. You feel a little shy an da little silly, like you did the first time you wore high heels, and after making your thanks and receiving the compliments the Beauty Operator's Creed evidently calls for, you sail away, waiting for people to fall back in amazement at the sight of you. Surprisingly enough, in your familiar surroundings, you look very much like yourself. Your nose is still there and the hair hasn't really changed either. It does, you have to admit, look neater, and more sculptured, and—well—smarter, and you poke a tentative finger at it. It really does look pretty good. Maybe, if you fluffed it out just a little bit, right there—

The Man is Mr. Julio, of New York City, and he is in Atlanta for the opening of Davison's new Beauty Salon, Monday, Sept. 12. He will be available for free consultations all during the week.

Q. Is there some way to vary the usual way of serving toast for breakfast? C. B. S.

A. Use new kinds of bread as raisin, cinnamon, nut, fruit, or brown bread. Try sprinkling hot buttered toast with a brown sugar—cinnamon mix; or, combine equal parts of softened butter and honey for a sweet spread. Grated mild cheese sprinkled on toast is especially good with scrambled eggs.

Q. Why do the modern recipes say to roast meat in an uncovered pan? M. A. G.

A. No true roast is ever covered during cooking. If it is, the moisture from the meat steams rather than roasts, and results are not satisfactory.

Q. How do I make smooth gravy? Y. S. G.

A. For each cup of gravy, use two tablespoons each of flour and meat drippings, and one cup of liquid (water, meat stock or milk). Stir flour into hot fat and cook until lightly browned; gradually stir in liquid and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. The gradual addition of the liquid and the constant stirring prevents lumpiness. Season gravy if necessary.

Bargain of the Season—Music

By DORIS LOCKERMAN
Constitution Associate Editor

The bands are warming up, the sopranos are vocalizing, the instrumentalists are tuning and one can almost hear the melodic overtures to the most outstanding concert season Atlanta has ever had.

Twenty-five concerts, not including the annual Spring season of opera, nor the many fine recitals in colleges and on sponsored benefit series, have been booked to be brought here this Fall by the three major musical groups. There will be 10 Symphony programs, eight All-Star presentations, and seven recitals in the Concert Artists Series.

This is not too many for Atlanta if the citizens are the music lovers they are assumed to be. Towns of half Atlanta's size, have as many or more concerts per season and many of them are over-subscribed.

The trouble here seems to be that the concert attractions do not reach a sufficient number of Atlanta's vast population. Either they have not been awakened, or else they have not been persuaded that the prices are extremely modest and within the reach of the majority.

Of course, Marvin McDonald is over the top with the All-Star Series. But it has taken 18 years of able management to achieve that result. Now it is the fact that to get a pair of season tickets in a desirable location in the Auditorium is nearly impossible. It has reached the point that the season holders of years are, so to speak, bequeathing their rights.

And on the subject of Marvin McDonald, he is still hearing from several ardent and sincere workers in the Atlanta Music Club, who were somewhat affronted by his recent observation that the Atlanta Symphony is potentially more important to Atlanta than the Music Club itself.

They hoped he was not underrating the Music Club which has weathered many a storm and which mothered the Symphony and contributes generously to it now.

Mr. McDonald's position is still the same. In the opinion of the man who has been called the most powerful friend of musical culture the modern South has seen, no city has really reached esthetic maturity until it raises up and supports its own Symphony. A symphony orchestra, he believes, is a dynamic, refining force in any region, and Atlanta is no exception. A corps of 90 or more trained musicians, many of whom come from Greater Atlanta's own half-million residents, can do more than present an occasional concert; it can become the core of a teaching staff that will rule out the necessity of ambitious young men and women musicians leaving Georgia for advanced training . . . and a livelihood.

As a matter of fact, Mr. McDonald has already explored the concert-booking agencies in New York and has their promises that they will book the Atlanta Symphony in series in cities all over the South, where it will do credit both to its listeners, and to the city from which it comes.

An important thing has happened to the Symphony this year. It has finally caught the attention and interest of general business and industry and now busy new leaders, 130 of them, have banded together to form a Men's Committee for the Atlanta Symphony Guild.

Eugene Young, Manager of the Hardware Mutual Insurance Company of Minnesota, with offices here, is chairman of the Men's Committee. He has appointed 20 captains, who are spearheading a drive for Guild membership, promoting the Symphony as one of the city's greatest assets, both through its advertisement of the city's good name, and its cultural advantages.

Advertisers, attorneys, automobile dealers, amusement dealers, bottlers, trade, doctors, druggists, food processors, hotels, utilities, insurance firms and every important facet of Atlanta business will hear about the Symphony through these 20 captains. The Corporate Gifts Committee will be headed by Joseph E. Birnie, Richard Joel of the Journalism Department of Emory University is Director of Public Relations and William P. Layton is Business Manager.

Bruce Woodruff, attorney, is President of the Guild, and the other officers are T. Erwin Schneider, Charles Jagels, Mills B. Lane, Jr., Malon C. Courts and Philip H. Alston, Jr.

Price of season tickets for the Symphony remains one of the bargains of the year. Where else could one hear artists of first rank for 55 cents an evening?

And the highest-priced seats for the Concert Artists Series: Ginette Neveu, violinist; Luboshutz and Nemenoff, duo pianists; Jennie Tourell, soprano; Francis Poulenc, composer-pianist; Pierre Bernac, baritone, as well as Georgia's Hugh Hodgson, the String Quintet, Emory Glee Club, and the Atlanta Choral Guild will be $1.20 each. The cheapest, from which one can hear easily in the acoustically-fine Wesley Memorial Chapel, will be priced at about 69 cents per concert.

Henry Grady PTA To Meet

Henry Grady High School PTA meets tomorrow evening at 7:30 p. m. in the school gymnasium. Claude Grizzard is President.

Mrs. W. H. Dowis will be in charge of the recreation room from three till five each school day. From the time of its opening an average of 250 boys and girls were in the recreation room every afternoon.

Miss Ira Jarrell, Superintendent of City Schools, has stated that Atlanta schools are doing a better job in the community by increasing local interest in school activities. "Last year at Grady High" she said, "the meetings were so crowded that parents had to go early to get a seat. The Grady President, Claude Grizzard saw to it that the group was a Parent-Teacher and not a Mother-Teacher Association."

The project was so successful that other high schools are now adding similar recreation programs.

Cancer Detection Plan Launched by Experts

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—(AP)—Cancer experts yesterday launched a five-point plan to find silent lethal cancers early and save millions of people now destined to die of the disease.

Their decisions came at the end of the first conference on cancer detection sponsored by the American Cancer Society. It brought 60 experts together to seek better ways of finding cancer early. Most cancers now can be cured if they are found soon enough.

Their decisions:

1. Try every way to find a simple test for cancer.

Four blood tests that might be good were discussed. For the first time this search once regarded as a crackpot hope is to get full support.

2. Make every doctor's office a cancer detection clinic. It could be done if the doctor makes the right kinds of tests.

3. Improve cancer detection centers.

4. Co-operate in tuberculosis chest X-ray surveys. These surveys to spot TB sometimes show shadows that are lung cancer. The conference discussed ways to follow up and make further tests on these people.

5. Use statistics better and wire widely to learn facts and trends in cancer.

Detection centers have shown that cancers can be found early and they have saved lives, said Dr. Eugene E. Cliffton, of the Yale University School of Medicine.

"We have only scratched the surface of what can be done," he said. "A limited experimental program of cancer detection has been brought to the point where it now can be used in every doctor's office in the country.

Industrialist, Wife Die In Home Fire

JACKSON, Mich.—(AP)—G. Stanley Porter, 63, prominent industrialist, and his wife, Margav, burned to death in a fire that destroyed their $40,000 Summer home late Saturday night.

Porter was Chairman of the Board of Argus, Inc., Ann Arbor, Mich., camera manufacturers.

The Porters were alone in the nine-room frame residence when fire, of unknown origin, broke out about 11 o'clock Saturday night. Their maid, Mrs. Sadie Rahney, told State police a log fire was burning in the fireplace and the oil burner was turned on low when she left the place about 10 p. m. She said she was asleep in a garage apartment nearby when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Porter was the former Marguerite Williams, of Lapeer, Mich. Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. William Wetzel, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. George Kryder, of Akron.

Moncrief Furnace Co. Urges Changing of Air Filters

"The only way to get the full benefit of an air-filtering system is to change the air filters at least once a year," says Walter Rowland, Sales Representative, Moncrief Furnace Company.

Air filters perform a very important function in a warm-air furnace and should be replaced each season before Winter firing begins. When the filters become clogged with dirt, the furnace does not get the proper circulation necessary for clean, economical heating.

"The principal purpose of filters in a furnace is to remove from the air, that which is circulated throughout the house, all lint, dust and dirt particles which seep into the house and heating system. The removal of such foreign matter cleans and freshens the air you breathe, thereby providing a more healthful atmosphere in which to live," Mr. Rowland states.

"The health factor is, however, only one of the benefits which air filters provide. Equally as important fro ma heating standpoint is the air the furnace breathes. When the filters in a warm-air furnace become clogged with lint and dirt, the heating system frequently becomes sluggish, stingy with heat and wasteful of fuel. Forced-air furnaces, like humans, need good circulation to operate at peak efficiency," advises Mr. Rowland.

Air filters perform another important function which greatly appeals to the housewife . . . they provide the cheapest and easiest way to remove dirt from the house. "It is amazing," says Mr. Rowland, "how much cleaner the draperies, walls and furnishings stay when the air which is circulated is clean and free of dust and dirt particles. This fact alone saves lots of work and often substantial savings in redecorating bills.

"Speaking of filters, it is almost unbelievable how much dirt they accumulate during an average Winter firing season. This dirt and lint can not be removed as it penetrates into the fiber glass, clogging the filters and destroying their effectiveness," Mr. Rowland points out.

"The Moncrief Furnace Company attaches a great deal of importance to the frequent replacement of furnace air filters," adds Mr. Rowland, "we recommend replacing old or used filters with new Dust Stop Air Filters which are made by the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation and, are, in our opinion, the best obtainable for a forced-air furnace."

Moncrief carries all sizes of filters to fit any make of furnace. The filters are easy to install and can be purchased in most sizes for only $1.50. In ordering, home owners are asked to call by Moncrief Furnace Company, 676 Hemphill Ave., N. W., or telephone Hemlock 1281, for filter service.

CHANGE THAT FILTER NOW—Above shows Walter Rowland, sales representative of the Moncrief Furnace Company, demonstrating to Elizabeth Wall how easy it is to change the air filter in your furnace. The Moncrief Company stresses the importance of changing the air filters annually by pointing out that each Winter the filter in your furnace becomes clogged with dirt, therefore it does not function properly and keep the air in your home clean. Drop by the Moncrief Furnace Company, 676 Hemphill Ave., N. W., or call HE. 1281 for their filter service.

Protects From Rain, Sleet and Winter Storms

Over a long period of time, and by the installation of "Vent-Alum" awnings an thousands of residences and business houses under practically all conceivable conditions, the solid formed roof construction of "Vent-Alum" awnings, of the Georgia Tent & Awning Company, has proved itself to be one of the most satisfactory type of permanent awning designs yet conceived.

Not only is the "Vent-Alum" roof design both rigid and strong, but it presents a beautifully modern appearance, and has the advantage of unlimited color combinations. "Vent-Alum" awnings also come in two styles; residential style and commercial style.

The solid roof design permits the satisfactory, leak-proof installation of "Vent-Alum" awnings even when the drop of the awnings is so short that ordinary awnings cannot be used. This is of great advantage in terrace and patio canopy awnings.

There are no cracks or joints in "Vent-Alum" roofs to catch leaves, twigs, etc. "Vent-Alum" awnings are easily brushed off and washed off—easy to keep clean and new looking.

Perfect ventilation of "Vent-Alum" awnings is achieved by the smart, well-designed ventilating louvers in the pans of the end wings along the top edge of the end wings, and in the pans of the roof under the top flashing.

These ventilating louvers allow full and free circulation of air under and through the awning, but are so designed to prevent any leaking through the air-openings.

No hot air pockets can form under "Vent-Alum" awnings, and no dangerous air pressures can strain or damage "Vent-Alum" awnings—the ventilating louvers relieve all air pressure under the awnings and air passes easily and freely through.

Since "Vent-Alum" awnings are spot-welded throughout, there is no possibility of rattling or leaking. There are no screws or bolts to work loose or to rust out.

Elsewhere on this page is shown a picture of an awning that was installed by the Georgia Tent & Awning Company, who have been serving their customers for over 20 years, at the new and modern Cascade Flower Shop, 790 Cascade Ave., S. W. operated by Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Stallings. This large awning, being over 50 feet wide and extending out over the sidewalk a full six feet, illustrates the sturdy construction and soundness of design of "Vent-Alum" awnings.

Before "Vent-Alum" awning are painted, the aluminum is "etched" with a chemical treatment, which insures proper adhesion of the paint to the surface of the metal.

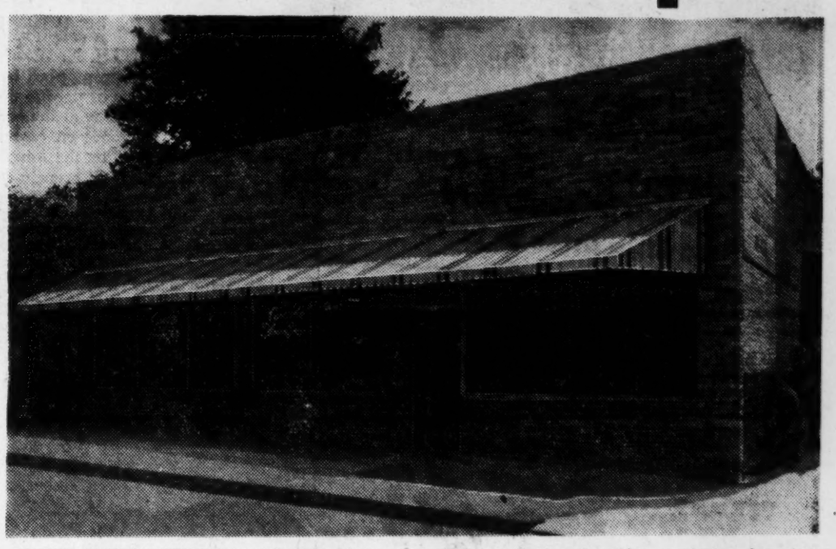
Only top-quality Vinyl Enamels are used in painting "Vent-Alum" awnings. These Vinyl Enamels have proved their durability and fastness. "Vent-Alum" colors will not crack, craze, peel, chip or blister.

Mildewing of paint finishes sometimes occurs, and to prevent the possibility of this condition, "Vent-Alum" paints are prepared with anti-mildew chemicals.

All "Vent-Alum" colors are baked on—insuring a beautiful, hard finish which remains smooth and fade-resisting. Special colors are also available.

The underneath sides of all "Vent-Alum" awnings are painted white to provide perfect light reflective value and diffuse soft light into room, porch, or building on which awnings are installed.

Drop by the Georgia Tent and Awning Company, 228 Margaret St., S. E., or call CY. 7551 and let a representative of this concern give you a free estimate on the cost of "Vent-Alum" awnings for your home or business headquarters.



"VENT-ALUM" AWNING in rich tan and maroon color combination, provides comfort and protection for customers "window-shopping" at the new Cascade Flower Shop. This awning was installed by the Georgia Tent & Awning Company, 228 Margaret St., S. W. Being 50 feet wide, with full extension over the sidewalk, this modern "Vent-Alum" all-aluminum awning not only protects flowers on display from the sun, but also shields the entrance-ways from blowing rains and storms.

Charles S. Martin, President of Charles S. Martin Distributing Company, makes a point of special interest to husbands when he told of the Youngstown Kitchenaider's construction. "This cabinet," he pointed out, "is of standard Youngstown heavy guage sheet steel. It won't 'rattle' or give off a tin-ny sound as do cabinet sinks of cheaper construction. In my opinion it is the biggest dollar's worth ever offered in modern kitchen equipment."

Washington Seminary Opens Its 72d Year on Sept. 15

By JIMMY CHAMBERS

"Reading, Righting and Rithmetic" will be number one on the hit parade of the girls attending Washington Seminary on Sept. 15. On this day all departments of this popular school for girls on Peachtree Road will have their opening day.

This will be the 72d opening day for this school and if it follows its pattern of the past 71 years, the girls will be on their way to another year of high caliber teaching and instructions in the school's many outstanding departments.

The Seminary, located at 1640 Peachtree St., has a kindergarten for the youngsters, eight primary grades, four years of high school and one year of pregraduate work.

Among the teachers at the Seminary this year will be two newcomers, Miss Achsah Ann Shore, who will be the physical education assistant. Miss Shore is a graduate of Brenau College and during the Summer was a counsellor at Camp Nakanawa. Mrs. Hortense LaGuette will be in the English department. Mrs. LaGuette is a graduate of the University of Miami and for the past three years has been in Mexico working with the American Embassy there. Mrs. Russell James, a graduate of Wesleyan, returns to the English department.

One of the outstanding features of the Seminary is its School of Speech. This course is required in the Junior High School division and one year in high school. They have two advanced courses available to those who qualify in their first three years in the speech course. Physical education is another course that the Seminary stresses.

Their college preparatory graduates are eligible and quickly accepted by colleges everywhere, even in Europe. Their general course graduates are eligible for junior colleges and State universities.

This school has a boarding department, which is limited to 25 very carefully selected girls.

According to Miss Emma Scott, Principal and President of Washington Seminary, a new service will be rendered to its students this year, although it has been worked on the past couple of years. It will be achievement tests and they will be given to all students from the first grade through high school. These tests will be used to measure the learning ability and the achievement of the student to meet more fully the needs of each individual. They will be particularly helpful in recognizing special capacities for a more complete and enriched development during the school years.

There is still time to register your daughter, whether she be kindergarten and grade school age or a teen-ager, at this famous school for the coming scholastic year.

Engineer Post Gets 20 Bids

Atlanta's new standard traffic code, due for activation Sept. 22, was one step nearer yesterday when entries for the post of traffic engineer closed with 20 applications filed.

Among entrants for the newly-created post are two Atlantans, Ben Coop, engineer in the City Construction Department, and E. E. Kirwan, Jr., engineer with the Homelite Corporation.

Among other applications were those of George T. Papageorge, former Atlantan now connected with the Government in Rockville, Md.; Charles S. LeCraw, Jr., a nephew of former Mayor Roy LeCraw and resident traffic engineer for the Eno Foundation at Saugatuck, Conn., and Harry Howard, Traffic Engineer at Jacksonville and former assistant traffic engineer for Georgia.

Carl T. Sutherland, City Personnel Director, said applications came from as far away as Washington.

A four-man sub-committee from a nine-member screening board will begin sifting out applications this week and the Board will certify a list to Mayor Hartsfield. Under the ordinance, the Mayor will nominate an engineer subject to confirmation by City Council.

Bob Leopold, Francis Craft, Fred Moore and Sutherland compose the screening sub-committee. Other members of the nine-man committee are A. L. Zachry, W. E. Mitchell, Dr. Raymond Paty, Police Chief Herbert Jenkins, and Ernest Brewer.

RELIGION IN GEORGIA

Why Ban Religious Teaching in Schools?

By THOMAS ELLIOTT

Here is an amazing situation in America which is duplicated in no other country in the world: Thirty million American youth this month are placed behind the eight-ball. Several hundred thousand of these American boys and girls are in Georgia. Without going into details, here is what it means: Thirty million boys and girls this month start school work again, and will be taught reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic in public schools.

But not one word of teaching about religion will be legally allowed. The boys and girls may be taught as to paganism, Socialism, Communism, Fascism, Naziism and militarism in public schools, but not one word will be legally taught them in public schools about the Jesus Christ religion. Any public school teacher who undertakes to teach anything about Christianity is liable to lose his job and be thrown into the hoosegow—and quick.

Fellow Georgians, if this is not a super-amazing situation in Georgia and the world, this reporter is unable to imagine what would be such a situation. And this is in Georgia, known as the Bible Belt, and termed by the late Dr. G. Campbell Morgan as the most evangelical area in the world.

Bibles in Demand

There are more people in the world today begging, pleading for the Gospel of Jesus Christ than ever before. The American Bible Society, in addition to millions of Bibles and scripture portions sent to war-famished lands, has in hand right now urgent SOS appeals for 8,000,000 more Bibles and scripture portions. These tearful entreaties for the Gospel of Jesus Christ come from Europe, Asia, Africa, Central and South America. The American Bible Society and other Bible Societies are laboring mightily to answer those entreaties. Last year they furnished 29,000,000 Bibles or portions.

In His final words Jesus Christ commanded His followers to preach the gospel, bear witness and teach believers to observe and do as He did. When the Holy Spirit came upon those followers at Pentecost, they at once set about doing as Christ instructed. St. Paul wrote Timothy, "Preach the word." When St Paul was led by the Holy Spirit to go into Europe and promote salvation among men he wrote, "I preach Christ and Him crucified." John Wesley is credited with saving England from a French Revolution some 200 years ago. Congregations would assemble at 5 o'clock in the morning to hear John Wesley preach. When asked what he preached about, John Wesley said "I gave them Christ."

Here in Atlanta the past week several hundred church women from 12 Southeastern States spent two days in serious consultation as to how best promote human rights and interests. The chief spokesman is quoted as setting forth the sure secret—"Preach Democracy."

This reporter is a Democrat from snout to tail. He believes in the Gospel, and he is a Democrat because he believes in that Gospel and the Jesus Christ religion. Nowhere in this world is there a "smidgin" of true democracy except where, directly or indirectly, the principles of Jesus Christ are more or less observed. Oppression is found only where Christ's principles and teachings are thrown overboard. Let us remember that democracy does not promote the Jesus Christ religion, but the Jesus Christ religion never fails to promote democracy. Get the Jesus Christ religion, and you get democracy. Why put the cart before the horse? Let's try Christ's way in Georgia. "Give them Christ."

When the disciples fished all night, and caught nothing, Jesus Christ told them how to cast the nets. The disciples followed His instructions—and the nets were overloaded. Let's try it Christ's way.

Money for Preachers

Salaries and income for Georgia's 5,000 parsons are to be upped for a total of $725,000 per month, or $8,700,000 per years; while the combined total for Uncle Sam's 140,000 parsons will be upped $20,340,000 per month, or $244,080,000 per year, if a Congressional Bill goes through. The only strings tied to this added money for American preachers are that each minister must be a citizen, and must put the money back into circulation within 30 days after receipt of same.

Information relative to this jackpot of added income for the preachers is gathered from H. R. 2135, sections 303 and 304, as now considered by the Congressional Ways and Means Committee.

A casual perusal of the bill suggests at least 101 thoughts. The measure is considered very human in character by some people, while others judge it to be very Christian. Some say they would much prefer to see national expenditures go into preachers' hands rather than into the hands of five percenters and other types of grafters.

One direct result of the proposed increase of simoleons for the citizen preachers will be a large increase in the number of men entering the ministry. Many men have refused to enter the ministry because of inadequate pay. Another direct result will be the improved living conditions of many pastors, and also stepped-up activity in spending $145 in new money every month.

Georgia's 5,000 preachers at present have salary incomes ranging from $8 per year to $10,000 per year, according to records published last January. As stated above, the coming into Georgia every 12 months of $8,700,000 in new money into the hands of preachers in addition to what they already receive will mean a great many things in various ways. I hope the preachers get this added money, for some of them sorely need it.

McCLAIN REPORTS

Atlantan Finds Commies On Way Out in Greece

By BETSY HOPKINS

High in the stubby, green corrugated hills of Greece a gnarled old shepherd stood among his sheep. His face was finely chiseled by sculpturing winds and a blistering sun, and his eyes gored the Americans who queried him.

"The Partisans," he enunciated carefully, "they are not Greeks."

The girl leaned against an ancient Athenian building and snarled at the Americans.

"Why don't your people send their troops over to fight the Partisans? You are our allies; you must help us drive the Communists out of Greece."

"The Americans are stupid," she sneered. "They sleep, always they sleep."

The man with the ludicrous lips sipped his coffee and offered a sketch of Greece's more recent occupation to the inquisitive American.

"The Italians, they sing and dance," he grinned. "The Germans, they shoot everybody, the British drink tea and the Americans build highways."

From these random phrases Donald McClain, 20 Cherokee Rd., as a student at the Summer session of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, imbibed the story of Greece.

"The Partisans, the guerrillas, the endarntes, in short the Communists, are considered by the Greeks to be a foreign element," says McClain. "There is no longer the feeling of internal strife. Today, it's the Greeks against an outside force."

"But Communism seems to be on the way out," he smiled. "When a group starts blowing up bridges and destroying the countryside, they don't plan to return and take over."

"The Greeks," he asserted, "consider the present government strong, efficient, just the thing to fight off the Communists.

"Yet, this in itself is more like an apology, or an attempt at justification. It has no positive element. They neither praise or berate the government, but, without revolutionary sentiment, will wait patiently and try to make a wiser decision at the next election."

"But," adds McClain, "whatever their feelings, they never offer Communism as an alternative to the present government."

According to this young student, the Greeks are intensely pro-American. They don't feel, as the Spanish did, that the United States is fighting its battles on their ground, and they appreciate American aid."

"Although the government is strong, perhaps semi-terroristic, it is not the corrupt, rightist force that I had expected to find. But they do have a strong club, and they're using it," he proclaimed.

"Also I was misled about the poverty of the Greek people," he continued. According to McClain, theirs is a strong, confident, noble poverty.

"The people have not lost their self-respect.

"Theirs is not the irritating, decadent, offensive poverty of the Egyptians that lead a people to lie, cheat and steal for a dollar," he emphasized.

Speaking on the position of women in Greece, the youth declared that an eager Balkan beauty offered one of the boys at the American Academy $5,000 to marry her and take her to America.

"The women take orders with alacrity, would not be seen in a sidewalk cafe, and one girl I know of was soundly spanked by her brother for riding a bicycle," he grinned.

Visiting Alexandria, Cairo and Luxon on his way to Greece, McClain reports that the Egyptian people strongly opposed to the U. S. policy in Palestine, are becoming violently anti-American.

"They get sizzling mad over the fact that Jews are able to buy American arms, but the Egyptians can't. They feel that the U. S. deceived them and sold out to the Jews. Bitter because they have lost their one chance to defeat the Jews, they think the Jews can and will capture the surrounding Arab states."

Questioning everyone that could speak English, McClain says that this attitude is prevalent among all classes.

McClain flew to Greece in mid-June and has just returned after a two-month archeological study, which featured a tour of history-steeped spots of the country including Delphi, Olympia, the Isle of Crete and the Labyrinth at Konossos.

New Highway Strip Joins Cartersville, Adairsville

A new 11-mile stretch of Highway 41, between Cartersville and Adairsville, was open to traffic yesterday after nearly two years of construction, ripping up and reconstruction.

Originally planned to eliminate several dangerous curves and a long stretch of winding road, the improved highway was started in late 1947. Parts of the highway have been opened to traffic several times, State Patrolmen said, but had to be closed within two or three days when the surfacing failed.

In the meantime traffice over the highway, one of the major north-south arteries through Georgia, has followed the old highway, passing over rough gravel patches as it criss-crossed the new highway in several points.

"There were a number of accidents on the road," according to Sheriff Frank Atwood of Bartow County, "especially among strangers."

"The roadbed seems to be okay," said one engineer who worked on the new section, "and the topping has been holding. It seems to be the asphalt binder that has been giving way."

Marshall Plan Blocks Radicals, Queville Says

PARIS—(AP)—Communists and DeGaullists would become political menaces again in France if Marshall Plan aid were withdrawn, Premier Henri Queuille said yesterday.

He made the statement in an interview on the first anniversary of his rise to the premiership. The jolly little country doctor became Prime Minister Sept. 10, 1948, after half a dozen better known French politicians had failed to form a lasting government. He is the first post-war French Premier to last stay in office a whole year.

"If the Marshall Plan were abandoned, if European countries cannot carry their co-operation farther," Queuille declared, shaking his finger to etch the point, "all our old problems will be back. Campaigns of demagoguery—both of the extreme left and extreme right—would be popular again."

The Communists are the extreme left in France, and the DeGaullists are the extreme right.

The Premier made these other points:

France will have no revolutionary strikes this year like the great Communist-led strikes of last year.

The Communist-controlled Labor Confederation in France has "frittered away its authority."

Faith that France can continue to enjoy a Republican, rather than any authoritarian form of government.

The British-American financial talks in Washington should lead to "at least partly convertible" European currencies.

France must maintain a "watch on the Rhine" against the danger of another German invasion.

"The recovery we have made so far," Queuille said, "has been due to the solidarity shown in the Marshall Plan, and for that we should be thankful to the American people."

"In September, 1948," Queuille went on, "many people wondered if Parliament shouldn't dissolve and our regime be changed. Now the Communists have lost strength and the Gaullists have lost strength. If the regime continues normally, the ambitions of those who want an authoritarian government will be disappointed.

"Of course," the Premier added, his eyes blinking brightly in his round, happy face, "there are always uncertainties—but I have faith in a Republican regime."

The Premier was especially anxious to speak of Communist influences.

Morse Injured In Sulky Fall

SALEM, Ore. — (UP) — Sen. Morse, 49, Oregon Republican, suffered a back injury and a temporary concussion Saturday night when he was thrown from his sulky at the Oregon State Fair horse show, hospital x-ray pictures disclosed yesterday.

Dr. Edgar S. Fortner, Morse's personal physician, said the Senator's general condition was "good" and that he will be released from the hospital "within a few days."

Morse was knocked unconscious for four or five minutes when his head struck the tanbark arena floor. Fortner said he suffered a brief concussion.

RAF FLIER CALLS BIG PLANE 'WASTE'

LONDON — (UP) — RAF Group Capt. H. S. L. Dundas, writing in the Sunday Express, described the giant eight-engine British Brabazon plane yesterday as the "biggest waste of time, money and talk since the Tower of Babel."

The plane is the world's largest civilian land plane.

"It is difficult to think up anything to say about the Brabazon on the credit side except that it looks nice and had been built by one of the finest aircraft manufacturers in the world," he wrote.

The article listed costs of the plane as £17,000,000 ($68,000,000).

Solon Urges Probe of Pentagon Row

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Sasscer, Democrat, Maryland, said yesterday Congress should take a hand in the Pentagon row which has exploded into charges that Navy offensive strength is being scuttled.

Sasscer said he favored an inquiry into the roles of the Army, Navy and Air Force in defense and security.

Capt. John G. Crommelin, a veteran Naval officer, protested Saturday that the Navy's attack power is being wrecked at the Pentagon. He said it is "being nibbled to death" and Navy morale destroyed.

The 46-year-old Captain said that in speaking out he was throwing overboard his 30-year Navy career, but added:

"I hope this will blow the whole thing open and bring on another Congressional investigation."

"I'd like to see that," Sasscer commented.

Crommelin said the General Staff dominates the Armed Services, and Navy fighting efficiency suffers. The General Staff is an Army top-policy group.

Crommelin works under the Joint Chiefs of Staff and does spadework on secret defense planning.

Ellis Defends Inspection Of Vote Machine Totals

Wellborn Ellis last night leaped to the defense of himself and two other campaign lieutenants in Charlie Brown's recent race for Mayor with a lengthy explanation of their attempt to inspect totals on the voting machines used in the balloting.

The five-page statement asserts Ellis, Joe Ray and Charles Johnson Friday morning sought to inspect the protective and public counter totals on the machines as they were being brought into a building in the rear of the courthouse for storage.

"Our purpose was to secure the counts before and after their use in the election, we were there in the presence of other people coming and going through the room and about 10 registration department employees."

Candidate Brown charged discrepancies in these totals when he requested a recount. The City Democratic Executive Committee in official session Thursday refused the request.

Ellis claimed they were inspecting the machines in the presence of A. D. "Pete" Cantrell, voting machine mechanic and technician—when the Committee's Acting Secretary, Watson Cary, walked in. Cary offered no objection, he said.

Cary's objection came, according to Ellis, in a second visit while Cantrell had one of the old-type machines open to record the counter totals. He said, he then sought permission to inspect the individual candidate's totals which Cary refused.

Later, Ellis said he conferred with Guy Eaves, county property custodian, and County Commission Clerk Frank Fling, who both believed he had a right to demand this from the party leaders. Cary advised him the Committee had decided Thursday not to let anyone inspect the totals.

"I did not touch the machines at all, nor did I see anyone else touch them, other than Mr. Cantrell and some workers who were moving them in, except the front of the machine which had been opened when Mr. Cary and Mr. Hancock (Constitution reporter) were there," Ellis concluded.

Meanwhile, Cary praised Cantrell for his outstanding service to the Democratic Committee in handling the machines during the primary.

"Cantrel was just doing his duty in recording the totals on the machines," Cary stated. "He will, of course, continue these duties until all machines are properly recorded. After processing, they will then be locked. Until such time we will continue to have them guarded."

SUITS TURN UP IN HOCK SHOP

BALTIMORE— (AP) —Samuel W. Barlow got his stolen suits back sooner than he expected.

Three suits and an overcoat were stolen from Barlow's home Saturday morning. Saturday night, when Barlow was working at his job as clerk in a pawn shop, a man came in to hock a suit.

Barlow did a double-take. It was his suit.

Barlow demanded to know where the customer got the clothes. He got no answer. The man dropped the suit and two others and fled with another man who was waiting outside the store.

Trade Plan Faced With Stiff Fight

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sen. Malone, Republican, Nevada, said yesterday he will take the Senate floor today in a "determined fight" to kill the trade agreements program extension asked by President Truman.

Colleagues expect Malone to speak several hours against the extension and in favor of his proposed substitute. It is a flexible system under which tariffs would be reduced proportionately as standards of living and competitive costs of production were raised in exporting foreign countries.

Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the Senate Finance Committee, who is piloting the Administration measure, hopes to reach an agreement after Malone's speech on the time for voting on the bill's peril point amendment.

This is a crucial issue, raised by Republicans. They seek to require that the Tariff Commission establish points below which tariffs could not be reduced without endangering domestic industry.

GRAHAM EVEN HELD UP HAND TO 'TEACHER'

Barkley Gone--Who's To Ease Senate?

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Now that Alben Barkley has been promoted from Senator to Vice President, he doesn't get quite so many chances to exercise the famed Barkley wit officially. And the Senate is the worse for it.

Barkley used to be an expert at jumping into a Senate squabble that threatened to get out of bounds. He'd come through with a snappy crack, or, more often, a long-winded, but witty, story with a near tag-line.

In short, he was a tension-breaker.

Every meeting, whether it's the United States Senate or your local PTA, needs one.

Several Senators have a sense of humor, although it's usually wordy and cumbersome. And several more have the type of humor that smarts and stings.

But none, it seems to me, is as effective as Barkley at pouring out humor to cool the hot fuss.

There's one possible candidate, Sen. Graham, Democrat, North Carolina, although he hasn't been around long enough to tell for sure.

The former President of North Carolina University is a small, vivacious man with a quick grin.

He tickled reporters soon after he came here.

The Senate was discussing a sales tax, and about four Senators tried to talk at the same time. During this hubbub, ex-schoolman Graham held up his hand, like a schoolboy, and asked:

"Mr. President, could I say a few words now?"

He was presiding over the Senate the other day during the absence of V. P. Barkley.

The Senate, as you probably know, now meets in the old chamber used 100 years ago. The place is so crowded there's no room for spectators.

Sen. Connally, Democrat, Texas, got into a wrangle, and just as he was beginning to express himself forcibly, down came Graham with the gavel, BANG!

Turning to the chair, Connally asked:

"Was that intended for me?"

"No," said the quick-thinking Graham. "I was trying to quiet the gallery."

Connally, amused, surveyed the gallery that wasn't there and drawled:

"Don't see nothin' but a fly up there."

One great difficulty with senatorial humor is that often it's so long drawn out that, when written down, it loses its zest, if any.

Sen. Millikin, Republican Colorado, can offer an example. He wanted to say that some Government officials were sticking their noses into other people's business, and there ought to be a law against it.

Here's the way it came out:

"This is only one of a number of signs that the proboscises of a number of these gentlemen are getting too long and that legislative surgery is indicated."

This doesn't sound like much written down, but the junior Senator from Colorado got a junior-size laugh out of it.

4 Unions Let Cotton Belt Trains Move

ST. LOUIS—(UP) — Four railroad brotherhoods promised yesterday to let Cotton Belt Line trains run without interference during a "long siege" of the strikebound Missouri-Pacific.

The three-day-old walkout against the 7,200-mile Missouri-Pacific System already was restricting transportation in 11 Southwest States.

R. E. Davidson, spokesman for 5,000 Mo-Pac operating employees who struck Friday, apologized for a mix-up which tied up Cotton Belt trains in Missouri and Illinois for 24 hours Saturday.

Cotton Belt operating employees had refused to cross picket lines set up by the Missouri-Pacific strikers. The line uses Mo-Pac tracks.

It took nine hours of conferences between Union and Cotton Belt officials to clear the way for Cotton Belt trains to move. Pickets, who first refused to give way, were withdrawn after top Union officials personally delivered instructions not to block Cotton Belt trains.

Ten trains which had been tied up at East St. Louis and Dupo, Ill., and Illmo, Mo., began moving Saturday night.

Davidson said he regretted the "error" and that it would not happen again. He also apologized for the temporary halting of an Illinois Central freight train at Columbia, Ill. Strikers had halted the train in the belief that its rock cargo was one normally hauled by the Missouri-Pacific.

Yugoslav Letters Opened by Czechs

PRAGUE — (AP)—Czechoslovak postal authorities are inspecting mail received by Czech citizens from Yugoslavia, it was learned yesterday.

This practice apparently resulted from the increasing tension between Marshal Tito's government and the Cominform nations, of which Czechoslovakia is one.

Persons receiving such mail find it bearing the "opened by postal officers" seals. Whether outgoing mail to Yugasloovia is being inspected could not be determined.

AUSTRALIAN WONDERS

Savage Snake Eaters, Shining City Found

LONDON—(UP)—Scientists who have "rediscovered" Austria while exploring for uranium disclosed they had seen many strange sights, including a city which glowed in the dark and an emu which laid an egg on the run.

The scientists said the areas had not been thoroughly explored before because surveys in the early days were made "almost at a gallop because savage aborigines kept white men on the move."

These aborigines, they said, eat live snakes. They also reported they had found an invisible river.

At the almost geographical center of Australia, they said, the little township of Alice Springs is watered by the Lloyd River which has its mouth and source underground. Nobody has seen the river, but they know it runs alongside a railway and highway.

North of Alice Springs, where the road to Darwin runs through a vast sandy waste, the scientists reported finding "Devil's Marbles," pyramidical piles of spherical rocks from 18 to 25 feet in diameter. The scientists had no idea where they came from.

They said during their explorations they were chased by "Willy-Nillies" which are miniature whirlpools of red dust which travel at amazing speed. While being chased by one of these, they said, they saw the emu lay the egg at full gallop.

In the desert terrain between the northern coast of Australia and the Roper River they found a "forbidden city," fashioned by wind and storm from great cliffs of limestone, with "battlements, towers, walls, streets and minarets extending over 100 square miles."

The scientists said the area was known as the age-old "Corroboree" ground of the Aborigines "who today eat live snakes but fear to enter the city or even to discuss it."

"The Aborigines regard the city as the abode of the spirit, Boorjooinji, which is a 'proper cheeky fella' who would eat any human or animal entering the city boundaries," they said.

The scientists said "at night the city glowed with luminescent light which could be radioactive in origin. The Aborigines were terrified at this phenomenon and sat at all times with their backs to it."

TALKS FOR ENCORE

Tobin Sings In Lieu of Speaking

BROCKTON, Mass.—(UP)—Secretary of Labor Tobin sang a song for 3,000 persons at the Brockton Fair last night instead of making a speech.

Tobin, scheduled to be principal speaker at the dedication of a new grandstand, told the crowd he didn't know what to say, so would sing instead.

In a rich baritone, the former Mayor of Boston and Governor of Massachusetts, sang the Boston College theme song—"For Boston."

Though not a Boston College alumnus, Tobin once attended B. C. Law School and is a keen follower of the college's football team.

His performance drew cheers and cries of "more!"—But Tobin said he didn't feel up to an encore.

He made a brief speech instead.

J. B. Simpson To Open New Clothing Store

J. B. Simpson, Inc., dealers in clothing for men and women, has announced the "grand opening" of a new store, at 115 Peachtree St., today and Tuesday.

At this opening, Simpson will present to the people of Atlanta more than 600 Fall and Winter patterns in clothing, all made of domestic and imported woolens. In addition, Simpson will present for the first time their new line of smartly-tailored ready-to-wear suits and topcoats for men. During this showing, Simpson will feature many new shades of woolens, including the Corsair blue and the Leather and Saddle browns.

L. D. Connor, with more than 30 years of experience in the custom tailoring field, is the Atlanta Branch Manager for Simpson, and his assistant is E. Scouffas.

Norman Reinhardtsen, Vice President in charge of sales for J. B. Simpson, Inc., and Richard Steen, Secretary-Treasurer of the organization, will be present at this opening of the new Atlanta store.

SOVIET MAG AIRS CATTY FEATURE

MOSCOW—(UP)—The weekly magazine, Crocodile, reported yesterday that the French Ministry of Agriculture is negotiating under the Marshall Plan for the import of 50,000 American cats especially trained to catch mice.

The magazine suggested that American businessmen probably will force the French to buy American mice, after the French mice are gone, so the living standard of the cats will not be lowered.

POLICE BLOTTER

Pajamas Ignited

A partially-paralyzed Atlanta man yesterday was severely burned when sparks from a cigaret ignited his pajamas. Police said Otis Barnes, of 350 S. Boulevard, S. E., was admitted to Grady Hospital for treatment of second degree burns over the upper part of his body.

Arrest Deputy Sheriff

A special Fulton County Deputy Sheriff was arrested on charges of drunk operating after the car he was driving backed into a parked auto at Washington Street and Georgia Avenue. Ptl. W. E. Peacock and J. C. Hopkins said the deputy listed as Ivan Petty, 53, of Palmetto, backed into the parked car while attempting to turn his machine around in the street.

Automobile Looted

About $1,000 worth of jewelry and clothing was taken from an Alabama woman's car on Standish Street, N. W., police said. Mrs. Mildred Lippitt, of Auburn, Ala., told officers the jewelry and clothing was taken out of the car during the early morning hours.

ALL ELSE IS FAKING

Jaycees Urge Courtesy As Aid to Safe Driving

By FRANK MAJORS

For safer traffic, Atlanta Jaycees believe courtesy is the one ingredient that only the individual can contribute to make highways and streets safer for cars and pedestrians alike.

Courtesy can not be forced upon the driver or pedestrian either by law or outward compulsion, members of the Safety Committee of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, declared Saturday. Therefore it is most effective when it is exercised by the voluntary will of the person concerned.

Of course, the word involves many practices when applied to motoring, committee leaders asserted. Among these, they reveal, are patience, consideration of the other fellow, and a large amount of self-discipline.

If there is any doubt on this score, leaders suggest a look at mounting total of accidents, injuries and deaths, and, in particular, a studious reflection upon the fact that nearly 500 lives were lost during Labor Day weekend this year.

The toll from this tragic situation continues to mount though safer cars and highway construction, and more thought, planning and enforcement than ever before is directed toward reducing this hazard to life, limb and property.

Such restraint in the form of laws, speed limit and moral persuasion is, in the opinion of the Jaycees, failing to limit either the number of accidents or the people involved.

In a breakdown of 4,919 Atlanta accidents last year, in which 19 persons died, the violations involved and the cause therefor point to prevention mainly through the driver.

A lack of courteous consideration on the part of drivers under influence of alcohol caused 624 accidents with three fatalities. Likewise, excessive speed was held accountable for 451 accidents and five deaths. Exceeding safe speeds increased the toll 75 more accidents and two more deaths.

Failure to yield the right-of-way to pedestrians contributed 116 accidents and two deaths. Drivers on wrong side of road added 196 accidents and one death. Failure to obey stop signs accounted for 276 accidents and one death, while other violations totaled 1,304 accidents and five deaths.

WAIT, THEN WALK—Downtown shoppers scurry across Peachtree Street at Ellis Street as the new "pedestrian traffic light" spells out "Walk" in position "A". When the light turns green, a "Wait" signal shows up in position "B." Pedestrian traffic moves on "Walk." The green and red signals above still must be observed, as well.

COP WEARS WIG, GOWN

Disguised Police Trap Would-Be Extortionist

PORTLAND, Maine—(AP)—A 28-year-old Cape Elizabeth man was booked yesterday on an extortion charge by police who trapped him with female disguise.

Police Capt. Douglas W. Steele said Charles S. Morrill, Jr., admitted trying to obtain $3,600 from Mrs. Emma Jordan of South Portland, a meat packer's widow, through a kidnap note.

Steele said Morrill accepted a package—made up to resemble money—from the police captain—dressed to resemble Mrs. Jordan.

The transfer allegedly took place last night as Steele, wigged and gowned, sat in Mrs. Jordan's automobile at a rendezvous Steele said was set in an unsigned, typewritten note.

"Are you Mrs.J.?" Steele quoted Morrill as asking. The Captain said he replied "Yes" in high-pitched tone. "I'm supposed to get a package from you," Morrill was quoted as saying.

Steele said he passed Morrill the package. Then he collared him with the aid of Inspector William B. Deetjen, who sprang from concealment in the car.

The alleged extortion note, Steele said, was found in a doorway of the Jordan Meat Packing Plant of which Mrs. Jordan is President. Morrill has worked as a sausage packer in a plant near the Jordan concern.

PICKED IN 7 DISTRICTS

48 Jerseys Entered in Show Here

Georgia's 48 champion Jersey cattle picked from over 500 purebred entries in seven district competitions will be exhibited here at 9 a. m. today at Southeastern Fairgrounds.

Judges will select the top 15 entries to appear in the All-American Jersey Cattle Show to be held in Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 24-30.

The prize-winning animals are owned by members of the 4-H and FFA clubs. About one third of those to be exhibited were raised by girls.

The district competitions were held earlier in Athens, Augusta, Chatsworth, Columbus, Douglasville, Monticello and Moultrie.

The Atlanta exhibition is being held under auspices of the Georgia Jersey Cattle Club, according to R. L. O'Kelley, Field Representative.

A purebred Jersey cattle sale will be conducted at 1:30 p. m.

Boat Overturns, 3 Men Missing

PACIFIC CITY, Ore. — (AP) — An amphibious craft overturned in rough surf yesterday and dumped nine men and women into the Pacific Ocean. Three men are missing.

Two women and four men clung to life preservers and jackets until they were washed ashore. One of them, Carl Houseman, 43, Portland, is in a Tillamook hospital suffering shock. His 18-year-old son, Donald, is missing.

The others unaccounted for are Zack Fitzgerald and Willard Linn, both of Boring, Ore.

State Police said the survivors are Joseph and Marie Schwab, Mrs. Gertrude Linn and Bob Fitzgerald, all of Boring, and Ray Russell, Pacific City, skipper of the craft.

Witnesses said the war surplus craft foundered when it was struck broadside by a heavy sea and was overturned by a second wave.

Coast Guard lifeboat crews and airplanes circled the offshore waters in hope the missing men were clinging to life preservers seaward.

$18,000 for Somebody In Kate Smith's Clicks

By RITA VAN PELT

If you noticed something which sounded like the peck-peck-peck of a typewriter during the Kate Smith Calls program over WCON-ABC last Monday night, it was not Miss Smith taking typing lessons in case of a sudden Hooper dive. It was the sound clue to the identity of "a very good friend" of Kate's, the naming of which may bring somebody $18,000, including a glamorizing treatment and a two weeks' stay at the Waldorf-Astoria to make the most of it.

Kate will call again this p. m. at 9:30. If you're interested in relaxation and renovating, better tune in!

Cormichael Saluted

Perhaps "Stardust" will go down in history as Hoagy Carmichael's greatest musical triumph . . . or maybe it will be "Lazy River," "Lazy Bones" or one of the other melodies which so perfectly depict the Carmichael musical personality.

The fascinating story behind the writing of "Stardust" will be told on tonight's Railroad Hour at which time Gordon MacRae and Lucille Norman will sing this and many of the composer's most popular works—8 p. m. on WCON-ABC.

Telephone Hour

A 20-year-old coloratura soprano from Staten Island will make her professional debut on the WSB-NBC Telephone Hour tonight at 9. She is Barbara Gibson who will sing the "Shadow Song" from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah," "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark" and "The Lass With the Delicate Air."

Peter Donald Returns

The goofy guy shown here looking as though he were afraid of getting his tonsils chilled is demon dialectician Peter Donald. At this sitting Peter is giving his impression of a French impresario attempting to "talk his way out of it." In his role as emcee on the WCON-ABC program titled Talk Your Way Out of It, the music was a huge success last season. He will bring the show back on the air via the same network beginning this afternoon at 3. If you don't like to laugh, don't listen.

YOUR STARS TODAY

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY

Sun in Virgo

General Tendencies — This should be a pleasant and lively day for most people, better for the group who depend upon solid work and practical thinking than for those who like to daydream. Most of the day's affairs concern money matters, business correspondence or communication and real estate—the latter being good for the remainder of this month. There is great demand shown for novelty in any entertainment, so if you are planning a party give it some unusual touch. Love affairs are very sensitive just now, and it might be wise to wait until the last week of September before flying up in the air over trifles.

If It's Your Birthday — You have time ahead in which to settle important and long-drawn-out deals. Be sure to make some progress with them before the first part of 1950, however, because next year will be less and less fortunate for you in this respect. I think I would settle any legal battles rather than enter into long arguments about them, only to win less in the end. Your personal ties, such as family, friends and romances, may seem dull or run along strictly on a scheduled basis. If you find congenial new contacts in the next 12 months, then you can count yourself a particularly lucky person.

Bartow Ag Fair

CARTERSVILLE — Bartow County's annual agricultural fair, sponsored by the Carl Boyd Post of the American Legion, will open here Monday, Sept. 19, with the largest number of exhibits in the exposition's history. Merchants have furnished prizes in the sum of $400 daily during the entire week of the show.

Nearly Every Georgia City Maps Myriad Programs For Soil Saving Week

Constitution State News Service

SOPERTON—With reports from 10 of Georgia's 25 soil conservation districts already tabulated, indications are that Soil Conservation Week, beginning today, will be observed by numerous groups in every part of the State, J. L. Gillis, Jr., Chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee, reported yesterday.

Proclaimed by Gov. Talmadge and sponsored by the State U. S. Department of Agriculture Council, the special week is being observed to get more soil improving and soil-conserving crops planted throughout Georgia in an effort to make the state green in February and March when the National Soil Conservation Supervisors Association annual meeting will be held in Atlanta.

Chairman Gillis listed figures compiled in the office of state conservationist T. L. Asbury.

He said that the 10 districts reporting have planned 154 church service sermons on conservation, 75 demonstrations on how to do conservation work and 25 civic club programs to acquaint town groups with conservation activities on farms.

In the districts reporting, 11 special editions of newspapers are being planned and 14 newspapers are to call attention to the week with editorials.

Conservation will be the theme of 15 school programs in these districts and 86 farm and home meetings. Educational moving pictures dealing with conservation activities are to be shown at 25 farm and home meetings. One county is scheduling a crop seeding demonstration by airplane.

Mr. Gillis said that 3,000 posters citing the interest of Georgians in conservation work will be distributed through offices of county soil conservation technicians, and that a number of local groups are making up special posters for use in their own areas.

"Emphasis on soil conservation ties in directly with the programs of all farm agencies and groups," Gillis asserted, "and the team work being shown by these agencies and groups should insure the success of this special week."

D. L. Floyd, chairman of the State U. S. D. A. Council also reported yesterday that he is receiving favorable reports from county U. S. D. A. council chairmen and that leaders of the various agricultural organizations in the state are cooperating in the drive to acquaint all Georgians with the purposes of Conservation Week.

How Many Farms Give 365 Days of Grazing?

MONDAY, SEPT. 12, 1949

Suggestion of the day: "I am among those who believe that life in the United States can be made more interesting and of higher quality, and I am among those who want to do something about it."
—Ralph McGill, Editor, Atlanta Constitution.

FRONT-PORCH PHILOSOPHY

I find some people have oversimplified the explanations of front-porch farming and have made the doing of it so easy and casual as to take all of the challenge out of it. Anything altogether simple isn't worth bothering with, so we remain in status quo and keep on with our cotton-and-corn-only program of farming with its admitted shortcomings.

To explode the reasoning that front porch farming is too easily accomplished to enlist the best efforts of serious-minded farmers, I propound herewith one forthright question: How many farmers of your acquaintance are now doing front porch farming?

How many farmers do you personally know who are getting 365 days of grazing per year? How many farmers in your county are actually making use of our climate, rainfall, fertilizers, and the plants at hand in such way as to provide adequate feed for their livestock every day in the year from their pastures? And solely from their pastures? In my own county of 1,000 farmers I can recall only five such farmers.

This isn't surprising, for the program is new. Hundreds of men over hundreds of years have worked at this problem but it is only recently that all of the ends have been tied together.

The pattern in detail isn't the same in all places, but it is clear. In the lower Coastal Plain it may be that front porch farming calls for coastal Bermuda and Ky. 31 fescue grasses, with some form of legume to cheapen the nitrogen bill and add to the protein content. On farms in the Piedmont, if the slope is not too great, it may be that sericea lespedeza, Ky. 31 fescue grass, and some form of legume in the fescue, will meet year-round grazing specifications. In the mountains it could be that fescue and ladino, plus some Summer grass or legume, would fill the bill.

But there is fencing to build, drinking water to be made available at all times, fertilizer to be applied, the grazing crops established, and the desired form of livestock selected and purchased.

True, the system is simple enough And yet, perhaps you've noticed tha the farmers converting to front porch farming are not known solely for their simple-mindedness. Indeed, some of them are said to be intelligent. Time will tell in this as in other matters.

Cordially,

Channing Cope

WATCH FOR THEM AT HARVEST FEST

DeKalb Boys' Corn Output Triples Georgia Average

A group of DeKalb 4-H boys will be showing the old-timers new tricks in corn-raising this month when they compete in the annual Boys' Corn Club contest at the county's Harvest Festival.

These boys are getting two and three times more corn from an acre of ground than the average Georgia farmer. In 1948 Georgia farms were producing an average of 15.5 bushels per acre. The same year Ralph Easterwood, young Southwest DeKalb 4-H Clubber who won last year's corn club competition, took 85½ bushels from his acre of land.

The 21 members of the corn club averaged nearly 54 bushels per acre, according to County Agent E. P. McGee, almost 40 bushels higher than the average yield.

Not to be outdone by the youngsters, 84 businesslike members of the Adult Hybrid Corn Club in DeKalb County planted three varieties of DeKalb Hybrid and Tennessee No. 10 Hybrid to make an average yield of 55½ bushels per acre. Club member S. D. Bryant won top honors with a near-sensational 122½ bushels per acre.

The 4-H Boys' Corn Club was formed last year when a group of Decatur businessmen gave each of the 21 boys a gallon of hybrid seed corn, enough to plant one acre. At the end of the year the boys gave back a bushel of corn. This was sold so that new seed could be bought for this year's club members.

After the boys were given their seed corn, it was up to their own hard work and advice from their parents and County Agent McGee.

The hybrid should be planted in 3½ foot rows, the County Agent recommended, with 15 to 18 inches in the drill. Most farms will require 400 pounds of 4-8-6 fertilizer at planting with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda as top dressing.

The marked increase has come about for several reasons, according to McGee. Farmers can turn only their better land to a crop because the higher yield allows the farmer a big acreage reduction. General soil improvements and the use of better cultural practices have been major factors in the high yields. And especially important is the use of hybrid seed corn which in DeKalb County has given an average of at least ¼ to ½ greater yield per acre.

Culture Rules Improve Lint Yield in State

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS — More than 1,400 five-acre cotton demonstrations are being conducted in Georgia this year, according to E. C. Westbrook, cotton specialist for the Extension Service, and yield reports show that good boll weevil control and proper cultural practices have paid unusually high dividends.

"A check-up on records coming in from South Georgia now shows clearly whether or not farmers followed recommended methods of planting, fertilizing and insect control," Westbrook says. "Where the right practices were followed, attractive per acre yields have resulted, but where farmers failed to follow through with recommendations, poor yields have been the result."

KEEN COMPETITION — Ralph Easterwood, 4-H Club members from Southwest DeKalb School, selects 10 of his best matching ears of corn to display in this year's Harvest Festival, beginning Sept. 20. The young farmer, who won last year's corn club competition at the fair, is expecting tough competition from a large group of young DeKalb hybrid corn growers.

Expert Gives Poultry Tips

By ARTHUR GANNON
Georgia Extension Service

Start chicks now for next Summer layers. They should begin to lay in March or April.

Give hens that are completing their year's production a thorough final culling in September. Then sell them next month.

Move new pullets to their permanent laying quarters just as soon as some of them begin to lay on range.

To get rid of lice, dip pullets in sodium fluoride solution (one ounce to each gallon of water) when they are moved to the laying house.

If pullets have not been vaccinated with fowl pox vaccine and are now laying, use pigeon pox vaccine for temporary immunity. It is mild and should not affect egg production.

Be sure to feed young pullets all the grain they will eat along with the mash until they have built up body weight. If a layer gets light in weight you can count on a drop in production.

Begin using lights in the laying house, turning them on at 5 a. m. each morning. This will stimulate egg production and will help prevent a Fall molt.

In South Georgia large range shelters open on all sides make good laying houses. Chickens suffer more from heat and poor ventilation than they do from cold.

Remove droopy chickens from the flock and place in a separate coop.

Poultry Show Set in Carroll

CARROLITON — The annual poultry show for Carroll County 4-H Club boys and girls will be held Sept. 29, it was announced yesterday by Troy Holcombe, assistant county agent.

Four-H clubbers who have already entered the show include Willodean Jeter and Joe Max Jordan, of Tyrus; Charles and Donald Smith, of Rock Ridge; David Tisinger and Zack Hearn, of Burwell; Hazel Williams, of Villa Rica; Carolyn Cooley and Kathlene Bennett, of Bowdon, and Jacqueline Johnson of Smithfield.

Those entering the show will exhibit the best birds from laying flocks which were started last Spring when each boy and girl was given 100 baby chicks through the Sears, Roebuck and Company poultry chain.

Feeder Calf Shows Slated In Georgia

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS — More than 1,000 feeder and stocker beef type calves, steers and heifers will be shown in two Georgia calf shows this week, with the first show scheduled in Thomaston today, according to State Extension Service officials. A second show is to be held at Rome tomorrow.

C. A. Bryant, Upson County Agent, reports that the Thomaston show starts at 11 a. m. and the sale will begin at 2 p. m. He expects farmers from Upson and six surrounding counties to enter animals.

"Several lots of steers are being entered from registered herds," he points out, "and still more are from some of the outstanding non-registered herds in the State. The animals will weigh from 350 to 850 pounds each."

Harry L. Brown, Dean and Director, Georgia College of Agriculture, will attend this show and sale.

In Rome around 500 animals owned by 4-H Club members, FFA boys and adults will be shown and sold, according to G. F. Wiley, Floyd County Agent

These two shows offer an example of a change in production from a fat calf type to a feeder type animal, acording to C. E. Bell, Jr., Extension Service livestock specialist. The change is coming about because the feeder type production of the beef calf is more suitable to Georgia conditions, in many instances, than the production of fat calves.

Georgia Farm Bureau Plans Greatest Drive in History

Constitution State News Service

MACON—One of the most intensive membership campaigns ever undertaken in Georgia will get under way tomorrow when the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation launches the fourth annual observance of Farm Bureau Week, it was announced yesterday by H. L. Wingate, GFBF President.

The success of this membership campaign, Wingate stated, "is already assured because of the support given our program for agriculture by the newspapers of the State." He added that membership in the State organization has grown from 1313 members in 1940 to more than 75,000 at the present time, "due to the fact that Georgia's editors and newspaper writers have been most co-operative in using news releases emanating from our State headquarters in Macon."

The Statewide membership drive which is scheduled to open tomorrow, has been officially proclaimed by Gov. Talmadge, Wingate pointed out, and information reaching State Farm Bureau headquarters indicates that practically every county in the State has made plans to make a house-to-house campaign during the week's drive.

Each county will assemble its membership committee tonight, to hear a transcribed message from Rep. Paul Brown, Elberton, and President Wingate, GFBF headquarters announced.

State GFBF headquarters will be notified Friday night of the progress made in membership acquisition thus far in the week's drive, and again on next Monday night, a final report will be filed. Following compilation of reports from the State's 159 counties a report will be issued showing the total enrollment of farmers during the campaign, Wingate said.

"The Farm Bureau," Wingate stated, "is working to improve the economy of this State, and our agricultural program is designed to help all groups including business, farmers."

Dooly County Fair

VIENNA — Plans are underway for the Dooley County Fair which will be held Oct. 3-8 at the Vienna High School grounds. R. A. Coleman, Commander of the American Legion Post No. 202, which is sponsoring the event, said the Lone Star Carnival Company will have charge of the midway.

Tobacco Crop of Nation for This Year Shows Mild Increase Over '48 Output

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Agriculture Department estimated the flue-cured tobacco crop at 1,131,000,000 pounds as of Sept. 1.

This, its crop report said, was somewhat above the 1940 crop of 1,090,000,000 pounds but about 15 percent below the average of the record crops of 1946 and 1947.

The department's report estimated the outlook for all tobaccos at 1,994,000,000 pounds. This compares with 1,982,000,000 pounds grown last year and is about 16 percent above the 10-year average. The general outlook declined slightly in August.

Production in Georgia this season amounted to 127,250,872 pounds, which brought farmers $51,951,592.91 at an average price per pound of 40.83 cents.

Statesboro with 11,814,660 pounds led all Georgia tobacco markets in poundage and also was top in money received for the crop, netting $4,729,266.81.

Progress in harvesting and curing was retarded in the Type 11 flue-cured belt and some loss resulted due to excessive rainfall during the latter part of August, the report said, adding:

"Hot, dry weather prior to the rainy period caused some Type 11 tobacco to ripen too fast. Part of it was lost because many growers could not get into the fields to prime some of the leaves."

The North Carolina indicated flue-cured production is: 269,500,000 pounds as compared with 277,270,000 last year for Type 11; for Type 12, 384,400,000 pounds as against 372,650,000, and for Type 13, 93,000,000 pounds as against 89,460,000 last year.

The report forecast a burley tobacco crop of 585,000,000 pounds. This estimate is a trifle lower than last month's and compares with last year's crop of 603,000,000 pounds.

The report noted that relatively favorable weather in the northern sections of the burley belt brought about moderate increases which were largely offset by excessive rainfall and high humidity in Tennessee where severe losses from pole sweat on some farms were reported. North Carolina also showed a decline from the prospects of a month ago.

Indicated burley production, with last year's crops in brackets, follows:

Ohio, 16,750,000 pounds (17,280,000); Indiana, 14,280,000 (14,250,000); Missouri, 6,210,000 (5,865,000); Kansas, 210,000 (200,000); Virginia, 20,320,000 (21,350,000); West Virginia, 4,000,000 (3,988,000); North Carolina, 16,500,000 (17,304,000); Kentucky, 405,600,000 (410,565,000) and Tennessee, 100,725,000 (112,100,000). Total burley belt, 584,595,000 (602,902,000).

Overall change in cigar tobaccos from last month were small. These types are grown largely in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia, Florida, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. The crop of fillers, estimated at 64.8 million pounds, compares with last year's production of 70.4 million and the 10-year-aberage of 58.8. Binders were placed at 58.2 million, which is below last year and the average by five and six percent respectively.

Farmers To Hear Gov. Talmadge

Constitution State News Service

SANDERSVILLE — Gov. Talmadge has accepted an invitation to address the farmers of Washington County here Thursday afternoon at the Washington County fair grounds.

Officials of the fair association yesterday announced that a free gate would be on the agenda for the speaking and a large crowd is expected. This will be the first time Gov. Talmadge has spoken in this city.

Washington County, long termed a "Talmadge County" has heard the late Eugene Talmadge on many occasions and the stalwarts of the present Governor are laying plans to welcome him with a parade.

Mrs. Leo Blackburn, Superintendent of Exhibits, stated that there would be no poultry display this year.

Plan Jersey Club

SPARTA — County Agent Joe Knox and Vocation Teacher H. Lester Ariail, of the Sparta High School, plan to start a Jersey Calf Club for members of the local 4-H Club and FFA Chapter as soon as they can get registered calves for the boys to raise. Prof. Ariail has already put out a number of calves with these boys during years past and they have been very successful. He also hopes to get some registered bulls scattered over the county for the use of club members and other farmers in the communities.
